Liebe Münzfreunde,

wir freuen uns, Ihnen diesen neuen Katalog zu unserer Frühjahrs-Auktion 2020 präsentieren zu dürfen. Wir wünschen Ihnen viel Vergnügen beim Studium und hoffen, Sie finden einige schöne Stücke für Ihre Sammlung.

Wie gewohnt haben wir unsere Kataloge mit Sorgfalt und Präzision entstehen lassen. Diesen hohen Standard verdanken wir einem Team von numismatischen Experten, die auf jahrzehntelange Erfahrung in der Erstellung von Auktionskatalogen zurückblicken können. Bei Künker können Sie sich daher auf eine exakte Bewertung und Beschreibung der Auktionsobjekte verlassen.

Wir gehen in unserem Qualitätsversprechen sogar noch einen Schritt weiter: Wenn Sie bei uns ein Stück erwerben, geben wir Ihnen eine Echtheitsgarantie – und diese gilt bei uns zeitlich unbegrenzt. Wir gewährleisten damit über die gesetzliche Frist hinaus, dass die von uns verkauften Objekte echt sind beziehungsweise exakt den Beschreibungen im Katalog entsprechen.

Neben der fachlichen Kompetenz und unserem Qualitätsversprechen sehen wir den Kontakt zu Ihnen als unsere wichtigste Aufgabe. Es ist eine Freude für uns, die Begeisterung für die Numismatik mit Ihnen teilen zu dürfen. Ihre Zufriedenheit ist unser Bestreben. Wir stehen Ihnen stets bei allen Fragen mit Lösungsvorschlägen zur Verfügung. Für uns ist es wichtig, Sie bereits ab dem ersten Kontakt persönlich und kompetent beraten zu können. Deswegen sind wir stolz darauf, Sie in insgesamt sieben Sprachen (Deutsch/Englisch/Französisch/Italienisch/Spanisch/Arabisch/Russisch) begrüßen zu dürfen.

Um stets für Sie persönlich da sein zu können und Sie beim Aufbau oder dem Verkauf Ihrer Sammlung optimal zu betreuen, haben wir über die letzten Jahre ein Netz an Dependancen und Partnern aufgebaut. Darüber hinaus können Sie uns auf vielen großen Münzbörsen und Messen persönlich antreffen.

Wir wünschen Ihnen nun viel Freude mit dem Katalog und viel Erfolg beim Bieten!

Dear Coin Enthusiasts,

We are delighted to present you this new catalogue for our 2020 Spring Auction Sale. We wish you much enjoyment in your perusal of the catalogues, and we hope you may find some nice items you wish to add to your collection.

We have, as usual, created our catalogues with care and attention to detail. These high standards, which you as a customer have come to appreciate, come to you courtesy of our team of numismatic experts, who benefit from decades of experience to create the auction catalogues. Thus when you consign to Künker or place a bid, you may depend on a precise, professional assessment and description of the objects to be auctioned.

At Künker we even go one step further with our assurance of quality: when you acquire an item from us, we give you a warranty of authenticity – with no time limit. This means we warrant, beyond the time period set by law that the objects bought from us are authentic and correspond to the descriptions in the catalogues, precisely.

Along with expert competence and our assurance of quality, we consider good relations with you, our customers, to be our most important priority. It is a great pleasure for us to share your enthusiasm and passion for numismatics. Our object in view will be your satisfaction. Our Customer Service is always more than happy to answer your questions and gives proposals for solution. It is important to us to advise you personally and competently, from the very first time you contact us. Therefore we're proud that we can greet you in a total of seven languages (German/English/French/Italian/Spanish/Arabic/Russian).

In order to be at your disposal constantly, and help you in building or selling your collection, we have developed a worldwide network of branches and partners in recent years which brings us even closer to you. In addition you can meet us personally at many major coin conventions and coin fairs around the world.

And now, allow us to wish you a pleasant experience with this catalogue, and much success in your bidding!

With Best Wishes,

Das „Haus für geprägte Geschichte“

Seit der Firmengründung im Jahre 1971 ist die Fritz Rudolf Künker GmbH & Co. KG mit der Friedensstadt Osnabrück verbunden. Unser Firmensitz ist heute eines der größten Kompetenzzentren der Münzenkunde und beherbergt zudem eine der bedeutendsten Bibliotheken ihrer Art. Diese steht den numismatischen Experten zur Verfügung, um immer eine exakte Bewertung und Beschreibung sowie geschichtliche Hintergründe der Auktionsobjekte für unsere hochwertigen Auktionskataloge zu liefern.

Im Stammhaus in Osnabrück berät und unterstützt Sie unser Kundenservice in allen Belangen rund um Münzen und Orden sowie zu den Saalauktionen und eLive Auctions. Um Sie auch in Ihrer Nähe betreuen zu können, haben wir ein internationales Netzwerk aufgebaut. Das zweite Standbein unseres Unternehmens ist der Handel mit Gold- und Anlagemünzen, der unseren Kunden eine interessante und reichhaltige Auswahl an numismatischen Objekten bietet.

The “House of Minted History”

Since the company’s founding in 1971, the Fritz Rudolf Künker GmbH & Co. KG has been strongly associated with the “City of Peace” Osnabrück, Germany. Today, our central offices are home to one of the most important centers of competence in the worldwide coin sphere, and contain one of the most significant libraries in the field as well. Künker makes this library available to numismatic experts, in order to always be in a position to provide precise assessments and descriptions, and of course historic background, of the auction items for our highly-valued auction catalogues.

From the company’s Osnabrück headquarters, the Customer Service team can advise and support you in all issues having to do with coins and medallions, and with matters related to the gallery auctions and eLive Auctions. In order to further serve you in your own region, we have built an international network. Our company’s second division, too, deals with minted history: the trading department offers customers a wide variety of outstanding gold bullion and collecting gold coins.

- Telephone bidding is accepted exclusively on lot numbers with estimates at 500 Euro or above.

- When you register for telephone bidding, we recommend to leave a written bid in addition. This bid will only be executed, should the telephone bidding be interrupted or not be achieved.
- Please be aware that telephone bidding is a risky way of participation in our auction. We do not assume liability should the telephone line be interrupted or not be achieved. We advise you to attend the auction in person or to send written bids.

Votre participation par écrit – Les points essentiels

- Veuillez nous faire parvenir vos ordres le plus tôt possible. Si vos ordres nous parviennent juste avant la vente aux enchères, des erreurs risquent d'être commises lors de leur traitement. Le formulaire ci-joint vous aidera à rédiger facilement votre offre. Vous pouvez nous envoyer vos ordres par la poste, par fax ou par e-mail.
- Si vous n'avez encore fait aucune acquisition chez nous, nous vous prions de nous indiquer une ou deux références d'autres maisons numismatiques où vous avez déjà acheté.
- L'authenticité des pièces vendues est garantie même au-delà des délais légaux.

Vous voulez participer par téléphone?

La participation par téléphone est bien sûr possible. Nous vous appelons volontiers pour vous aider à acquérir les pièces voulues. Pour des raisons d'organisation veuillez noter les points suivants:

- La participation par téléphone est possible seulement pour les lots estimés plus de 500 Euros chacun.
- Veuillez nous informer au moins 48 heures avant la vente de la liste des pièces pour lesquelles vous voudriez être appelé.
- Veuillez prendre soin d'être joignable quand vos pièces seront mises en vente. L'ordre de vente dans ce catalogue vous aidera à estimer l'heure de la vente.
- Vus les risques de la participation téléphonique, nous vous recommandons néanmoins d'indiquer une limite maximale pour chaque lot, pour que nous puissions enchérir pour vous, même si la communication téléphonique était interrompue ou ne pouvait pas être établie.
- La participation par téléphone présentant des risques, nous déclinons toute responsabilité si la communication téléphonique est interrompue ou ne peut être établie.

Ce qui se passe après la vente

- L'expédition des biens va commencer immédiatement après la fin de la vente complète, et prend généralement 8 jours.

Vous voulez confier vos monnaies pour nos ventes aux enchères?

Contactez nous si vous envisagez de vendre vos pièces. Notre compétence et fiabilité est prouvée depuis 1985 par actuellement 4 ventes aux enchères et environ 15 catalogues par an. Le plus important pour vous est que:

- Vos pièces seront décrites par notre équipe d'experts selon les standards numismatiques les plus récents, et elles seront présentées dans des catalogues de haute qualité en couleurs.
- Nous avons un des meilleurs fichiers-clientèle du monde avec plus de 10.000 clients. Nous vendons en moyenne plus de 95% de la vente aux enchères, et obtenons souvent des prix records. Les monnaies invendues n'encourent aucun frais.
- Notre service clientèle est disponible pour vous conseiller pour l'envoi de vos pièces, et dès leur réception vos pièces seront assurées pour le double de la valeur d'estimation.
- Vous recevrez une liste détaillée des pièces fournies au moment de la prise en charge, puis, au plus tard cinq semaines avant la vente aux enchères, vous recevrez leur liste exacte avec les numéros de catalogue correspondants.
- Immédiatement après la vente aux enchères, vous recevrez la liste des résultats et pourrez prendre connaissance des prix obtenus. Vous recevrez le produit de la vente dans les 45 jours après les enchères.

I punti piú importanti per la Sua partecipazione per iscritto

- La preghiamo di farci pervenire i Suoi ordini al piú presto possibile. Se i Suoi ordini ci arrivano poco prima dell'inizio dell'asta possono verificarsi errori. Il formulario allegato Le faciliterá l'invio dei Suoi ordini per iscritto. Ci puó far pervenire i Suoi ordini per posta, per fax o per email.
- Se non ha mai acquistato presso di noi, La preghiamo di volerci indicare a titolo di referenza il nome di uno o due commercianti numismatici presso i quali è già cliente.
- L'autenticità di tutti gli oggetti venduti viene garantita anche oltre i termini previsti dalla legge.

Desidera partecipare telefonicamente alla nostra asta?

La partecipazione telefonica è naturalmente da noi possibile. La chiameremo durante l'asta e La assisteremo volentieri per ottenere l'aggiudicazione dei pezzi desiderati. Per motivi di organizzazione La preghiamo di voler tenere conto dei seguenti punti:

- La partecipazione telefonica è possibile solo per lotti stimati con almeno 500,- € l'uno.
- La preghiamo di volerci comunicare almeno 48 ore prima dell'inizio dell'asta per quali pezzi desidera essere chiamato.
- La preghiamo di aver cura di essere raggiungibile telefonicamente al momento in cui vengono messi all'asta i pezzi che Le interessano. Lo schema orario in catalogo La aiuterá a stimare a che ora verranno messi all'asta i pezzi che Le interessano.

- La partecipazione telefonica è un modo incerto di partecipare alle aste. Non assumiamo nessuna responsabilità se per esempio la linea telefonica è occupata o interrotta o se Lei non sarà raggiungibile per altri motivi.

Cosa succede dopo l'asta?

- La spedizione del materiale d'asta comincia subito dopo la fine dell'intera asta e termina normalmente entro 8 giorni.
- Tutti i clienti che hanno partecipato all'asta ricevono entro 2 settimane dopo l'asta la lista dei prezzi di realizzo.
- I prezzi di realizzo sono visionabili sul nostro sito internet al piú tardi un giorno dopo la fine dell'intera asta.

Vuole consegnarci le Sue monete per una nostra asta?

Ci contatti se ha deciso di vendere le Sue monete. Dal 1985 la nostra competenza ed affidabilità è dimostrata da attualmente 4 aste e circa 15 cataloghi all'anno. Quali sono i punti di maggior importanza per Lei:

- Le Sue monete vengono valutate dal nostro staff di esperti secondo i piú attuali standard numismatici e vengono presentati in cataloghi di alto valore a colori.
- Con piú di 10.000 clienti disponiamo di una delle migliori banche dati clienti del mondo. In media vendiamo oltre il 95% del materiale d'asta realizzando spesso prezzi da record. Per i pezzi invenduti non ci sono nessuna spesa da pagare.

In the 1970s Josef Samel, his sister Angela, his brother-in-law Arnold Arluk and a childhood friend from Poland established a successful real estate company in Munich.

The siblings Josef Samel and Angela Arluk shared a passionate interest in the history of the Jewish people in Europe and Israel. On one of his numerous trips to Israel, Josef Samel met the Mayor of Jerusalem Teddy Kollek (Mayor 1965-1993). Kollek, born in Hungary in 1911, grew up in Vienna and emigrated to Palestine in 1935. Teddy Kollek was a coin collector himself and soon a close friendship with Josef Samel was formed between the two men. It was through Kollek that Josef also met Moshe Dayan, the charismatic hero of the 1967 Six Day War. For his part, Dayan brought Samel together with the director of the Israel Museum in Jerusalem, Professor Ya'akov Meshorer.

Angela Arluk

It must have been during this time that the siblings Josef Samel and Angela Arluk had the idea of compiling a coin collection which reflects the history of the people of Israel. With the expert assistance of Professor Meshorer and the former director of the Munich State coin collection, Professor Bernhard Overbeck (1942-2018), an outstanding collection of Jewish coins was created within a few decades.

Arnold Arluk

The highlight of the sibling's collecting passion was the exhibition of the collection on the premises of the Munich State Coin Collection. The collection was essentially complete when the exhibition opened in 1993.

The purpose of this catalog is to create a permanent memorial for the brother and sister, and to commemorate the eventful history of the Jewish people and the story of the Samel and Arluk families.

Josef Samel and Angela Arluk acted as generous patrons of various institutions that were important to them. Amongst them; the Jewish museum in Munich, the Israel Museum in Jerusalem as well as the Jewish old people's home in Munich, the Association for Jewish-Christian Cooperation and the Bavarian state Coin Collection, as well as many other individual projects. Their address in Pienzenauer Strasse in Munich was well known amongst fund raisers. The successful real estate owners never refused a request for a donation.

It is important to their descendants, daughter Mali Gitbud and son-in-law Dr. Leo Gitbud, as well as grandchildren Simone and Daniel Gitbud, that this part of the family history is understood as an integral part of the collection's history. May this catalog help to keep the memory of a wonderful family alive.

Fritz Rudolf Künker

Josef Samel, seine Schwester Angela und sein Schwager Arnold Arluk gründeten zusammen mit einem Jugendfreund aus Polen in den 1970er Jahren eine erfolgreiche Immobilienfirma in München.

Angela Arluk

Die Geschwister Josef Samel und Angela Arluk verband ein leidenschaftliches Interesse an der Geschichte des jüdischen Volkes in Europa und Israel. Auf einer seiner zahlreichen Reisen nach Israel lernte Josef Samel den Bürgermeister von Jerusalem Teddy Kollek kennen (Bürgermeister 1965-1993). Kollek, geboren 1911 in Ungarn, wuchs in Wien auf und wanderte schon 1935 nach Palästina aus.

Teddy Kollek war selber Münzensammler und schon bald in inniger Freundschaft mit Josef Samel verbunden. Durch Kollek lernte er auch Mosche Dajan kennen, den Helden des Sechstagekrieges von 1967. Dajan brachte Samel mit dem Direktor des Israel Museums in Jerusalem zusammen, Prof. Ya'akov Meshorer.

In dieser Zeit muß auch die Idee der Geschwister Josef Samel und Angela Arluk entstanden sein, eine Münzensammlung aufzubauen, die die Geschichte des Volkes Israel widerspiegelt. Mit der fachkundigen Hilfe von Prof. Meshorer und dem ehemaligen Direktor der Staatlichen Münzsammlung München, Prof. Bernhard Overbeck (1942-2018) entstand in wenigen Jahrzehnten eine herausragende Sammlung jüdischer Münzen.

Höhepunkt der Sammlertätigkeit des Geschwisterpaares war die Ausstellung der Sammlung in der Staatlichen Münzsammlung München. Mit Beginn der Ausstellung 1993 war die Sammlung im wesentlichen abgeschlossen.

Arnold Arluk

Mit diesem Katalog soll den Geschwistern ein bleibendes Denkmal gesetzt werden und an die wechselvolle Geschichte des jüdischen Volkes und an das Schicksal der Familien Samel und Arluk erinnert werden.

Josef Samel und Angela Arluk traten als Mäzene verschiedener Institutionen auf, die Ihnen wichtig waren. Sie unterstützen das Jüdische Museum in Jerusalem ebenso wie das Jüdische Altersheim in München, den Verein für jüdisch-christliche Zusammenarbeit und die Staatliche Münzsammlung neben vielen Einzelprojekten. Die Adresse der Geschwister in der Pienzenauer Straße in München war unter „Fund raisern“ gut bekannt. Eine Bitte um eine Spende lehnten die erfolgreichen Immobilienkauffleute nie ab.

Es ist den Nachfahren, der Tochter Mali Gitbud, dem Schwiegersohn Dr. Leo Gitbud, sowie den Enkeln Simone und Daniel Gitbud wichtig, dass dieser Teil der Familiengeschichte als Teil der Sammlungsgeschichte verstanden wird. Möge dieser Katalog dazu beitragen, die Erinnerung an eine wunderbare Familie wachzuhalten.

The Samel Collection of Jewish Coins and Medals

This catalogue contains one of the most important collections of Jewish coins which will be auctioned off by the Künker auction house in Osnabrück. The collection was compiled over decades by the Munich collector Josef Samel and his sister Angela Arluk (née Samel), who died in 2005 and 2015.

This coin collection covers the history of the Jewish people from the conquest of Judaea by the Persians in the 6th century BC until the present day. However, the emphasis of the collection lies with ancient Jewish coinage.

On the one hand, it is saddening to think that coins from such a collection will soon be in the hands of so many strangers all over the world, yet, at the same time, the catalog of this collection forms a well documented historical journey and honours the siblings with a worthy monument. On the other hand, such an auction is a necessity, in order to keep the flow of collecting alive, and to give not only collectors, but also museums the chance to purchase coins which may be missing in their collections. Without the availability of collectible coins, interest in coins would soon come to an end. Auction houses such as ours play an important part in this continuous process of compiling and dissolving collections. Such auction houses and their auctions ensure a healthy, trusting contact between buyer and seller and guarantee that all transactions are completed without problems.

Coins have been reflecting the history of mankind since the late 7th century BC. They create rapport and empathy for historical events, for the countries where they took place and for the people who shaped the history or suffered from it. They confront us with the many facets of human life and actions, raise questions about historical events and processes, make us aware and demand that we adopt a rational point of view.

When Cicero described history as „magistra vitae“, i.e. the teacher of how to live your life, the tactile presence of coins can often fill this role with more intensity than many other forms of historical evidence. An auction continuously puts such coins in the spotlight and, with them, the people in the past who had anything to do with them. Especially in a time when even the last vestiges of interest in history are coming to an end and where history lessons, even in our high schools, can only be described as pitiful, the operation of a company such as like ours is becoming more and more important.

Above all, this auction focuses in particular on the history of people who have made decisive contributions to the culture not only of our country, Germany, but to that of countries all over Europe and the world. Our high schools used to teach not only Latin and ancient Greek, but also Hebrew. This created a mental and human affinity to the cultures that form the pillars of our own. In this respect, the late director of the Munich State Coin Collection, Professor Dr. Bernhardt Overbeck, recognized the importance of this collection early on and exhibited a large number of the coins in Munich in 1993-1994.

He received excellent support for this project from Ya'akov Meshorer, the Chief Curator for archaeology at the Israel Museum in Jerusalem. The catalog 'Das Heilige Land. Antike Münzen und Siegel aus einem Jahrtausend jüdischer Geschichte' (The Holy Land. Ancient coins and seals from a thousand years of Jewish history), still available from the Munich State Coin Collection, is a lasting memorial of that exhibition. This catalog as well as Leo Mildenberg's book on the Bar Kokhba uprising, which was published in 1984, attest that the collection was largely completed already in the early 1980s.

The front cover of the exhibition catalog published in 1993.

Overbeck's efforts were rewarded by a visit of the Israeli Ambassador at the time, Avi Primor, who came to Munich for the exhibition's opening. By drawing attention to this collection in the media and making it tangible and accessible with this catalog, we hope to make a contribution to dealing more intensively with Jewish culture and history. Ignorance, a lack of education and especially being oblivious to history all too easily result in biased thinking and the willingness to engage in insane slogans and aggression. Let us use contemporary witnesses, which coins are, to become an educated and humane society.

For supporting us in writing this catalogue we want to express our warmest thanks to Jens-Ulrich Thormann, to Dane Kuhrt, to Inja MacClure, Helge Lewandowsky and Anne Falckenthal.

Special thanks to the publishing house J.C.B. Mohr for the right to use the maps published in this catalogue.

The Samel Collection of Jewish Coins and Medals

Dieser Katalog beinhaltet eine der bedeutendsten Sammlungen jüdischer Münzen, die durch das Auktionshaus Künker zur Versteigerung kommen. Sie wurde von dem Münchener Sammler Josef Samel und seiner Schwester Angela Arluk (geb. Samel), die 2005 und 2015 verstorben sind, in Jahrzehnten zusammengetragen.

Diese Münzsammlung deckt die Geschichte des jüdischen Volkes von der Eroberung Judäas durch im Perser im 6. Jhdt. v. Chr. bis in unsere Zeit ab; ihr Schwerpunkt liegt auf den jüdischen Geldstücken der Antike.

Man mag einerseits ein wenig melancholisch sein, wenn Stücke einer solchen Sammlung in zahlreiche neue Hände kommen und dabei in viele Teile der Welt zerstreut werden, doch macht unser Auktionskatalog diese Kollektion zu einer gut dokumentierten historischen Sammlung und ehrt diejenigen, die sie zusammengetragen haben, mit einem würdigen Denkmal. Auf der anderen Seite ist ein derartiges Auktionsgeschehen unbedingt nötig, um das Sammeln im Fluss zu halten und Münzliebhabern wie auch Museen die Chance zu bieten, ihnen fehlende Stücke erwerben zu können. Ohne diese Verfügbarkeit von Sammlerstücken käme das Interesse an Münzen bald zu einem Ende. Bei diesem kontinuierlichen Prozess von Zusammentragen und Auflösen von Sammlungen spielen Aktionshäuser wie das unsere eine wichtige Rolle. Sie sorgen dafür, dass ein guter und vertrauensvoller Kontakt zwischen Käufer und Verkäufer zustandekommt und alle Transaktionen rechtlich einwandfrei ablaufen.

Seit dem ausgehenden 7. Jhdt. v. Chr. spiegeln Münzen die Geschichte der Menschheit; sie schaffen Nähe und Empathie zu historischen Ereignissen, zu Ländern, wo sie stattfanden, und zu den Menschen, die den Gang der Geschichte gestalteten oder auch unter ihm litten. Sie konfrontieren uns mit vielen Facetten menschlichen Lebens und Handelns, lassen Fragen über historische Ereignisse und Prozesse aufkommen, und zwingen uns, nachdenklich zu werden und Standpunkte zu beziehen.

Wenn Cicero die Geschichte als magistra vitae, d.h. als Lehrerin unseres Lebens, bezeichnet hat, so kann die haptische Präsenz von Münzen diese Rolle oft mit mehr Intensität ausfüllen als es viele andere historische Zeugnisse vermögen. Eine Auktion rückt solche Münzen immer wieder in den Focus und damit auch die Menschen, die mit diesen Geldstücken zu tun hatten. Gerade in einer Zeit, wo selbst die letzten Ausläufer der Epoche des Historismus ein Ende finden und wo der Geschichtsunterricht selbst in unseren Gymnasien nur noch als erbärmlich bezeichnet werden kann, wird das Agieren eines Hauses, wie es das unsere ist, immer wichtiger.

Besonders mit dieser Auktion rücken wir die Geschichte eines Volkes in den Blickpunkt, das entscheidende Beiträge zur Kultur unseres Landes wie auch ganz Europas und der Welt geleistet hat. Früher wurde in unseren Gymnasien nicht nur Latein und Altgriechisch gelehrt, sondern auch Hebräisch. Damit wurde gedankliche und menschliche Nähe zu den Kulturen geschaffen, die die Säulen der unseren bilden. Der verstorbene Direktor der Staatlichen Münzsammlung München, Professor Dr. Bernhard Overbeck, hatte die Bedeutung dieser Sammlung unter solchen Aspekten schon früh erkannt und 1993/1994 große Teile dieser Kollektion in einer Ausstellung in München vorgestellt.

Dabei erhielt er die äußerst wertvolle Unterstützung von Ya'akov Meshorer, dem Hauptkurator für Archäologie des Israel-Museums in Jerusalem. Der Katalog ‚Das Heilige Land. Antike Münzen und Siegel aus einem Jahrtausend jüdischer Geschichte‘, der noch von der Staatlichen Münzsammlung in München zu beziehen ist, bewahrt bis heute die Erinnerung an diese Ausstellung. Dieser Katalog sowie Leo Mildner's Buch über den Bar Kokhba-Aufstand, das 1984 publiziert wurde, belegen, dass die Sammlung bereits in den frühen 80er Jahren weitgehend abgeschlossen war.

Vordere Umschlagsseite des Ausstellungskatalogs von 1993.

Overbecks Bemühen wurde damit honoriert, dass der damalige Botschaft des Staates Israel, Avi Primor, zu der Eröffnung der Ausstellung nach München kam. Indem wir nun in vielen Medien auf diese Sammlung aufmerksam und sie mit diesem Katalog auch greifbar und rezipierbar machen, hoffen wir einen Beitrag dazu zu leisten, sich wieder mehr und intensiver mit jüdischer Kultur und Geschichte zu befassen. Unbildung und Unwissenheit, besonders aber Geschichtsvergessenheit, zeitigen nur allzu leicht undifferenziertes Denken und die Bereitschaft, sich auf irrwitzige Parolen und Aggressionen einzulassen. Nutzen wir den Umgang mit Zeitzeugen, wie es Münzen nun einmal sind, dazu, zu einer gebildeten wie auch humanen Gesellschaft zu finden.

Wir bedanken uns ganz herzlich bei Jens-Ulrich Thormann, Dane Kuhrt, Inja MacClure, Helge Lewandowsky und Anne Falckenthal für die Unterstützung bei der Erstellung dieses Kataloges.

Ein besonderer Dank geht an den Verlag J.C.B. Mohr für die Erlaubnis zur Verwendung der in diesem Katalog dargestellten Landkarten.

THE SAMEL COLLECTION OF JEWISH COINS AND MEDALS

Judaea under the Persian Empire (550-330 BCE)

After Cyrus the Great (553/550-529 BCE) had revolted against the Iranian Medes and brought their Empire under his control, he first conquered the whole of Asia Minor, then wider parts of Central Asia and finally succeeded in capturing Babylon, the capital of the Neo-Babylonian empire. He freed the Jewish people who were living there in so-called Babylonian captivity, and helped them to rebuild Jerusalem and especially the Temple. His eldest son Cambyses (530-522 BCE) subjugated Cyprus, Phoenicia and Egypt. At this time Judaea was part of the Persian empire before becoming a Persian province in its own right. Its capital was Jerusalem, so that all the evidence suggests that the coins of this period were struck in Jerusalem. A few coins of the Samel collection, only small denominations, testify to this phase of Jewish history. The coins minted in Judaea (most likely in Jerusalem), reflect on the one hand the dominance of the Athenian currency, even in the Levant, by their Athena and owl design, and, on the other hand, coin images which show depictions of the Great King of Persia and his heraldic bird, the eagle underline the fact that Judaea was, at the time, ruled by the Persians.

Persian Period, 539-333 BCE.

- 2001 \mathcal{A} -Obol, Jerusalem?; 0,50 g. Helmeted head of Athena to r.//Owl standing to r., head facing, in l. field olive twig, YHHDH (Judaea) in the r. field. Hendin no. 1051; Meshorer, Treasury 197 no. 4. Rare. Fine Overbeck – Meshorer no. 1. 100,--

- 2002 \mathcal{A} -Hemiobol, Jerusalem?; 0,31 g. Bearded head of the Persian king crowned with a kidaris (jagged crown) to r.//Falcon or eagle with spread wings, in the r. field YHHDH (Judaea). Hendin no. 1059; Meshorer, Treasury 198 no. 16. Rare. Fine/nearly very fine Overbeck – Meshorer no. 2. 150,--

The eagle (or falcon) was the Achaemenids' heraldic bird. According to a mythic tradition the dynasty's founder was nurtured by an eagle; cf. W. Fauth, Gyges und die 'Falken', Hermes 96, 1968, 257-264, esp. 259; R. Schmitt, Der Adler im Alten Iran, Die Sprache 16, 1970, 63-77; D. Metzler, Der Adler als achämenidisches Herrschaftszeichen, in: Vom Euphrat bis zum Bosphorus. Kleinasien in der Antike. Festschrift für E. Schwertheim zum 65. Geburtstag, Bonn 2008, 461-470.

- 2003 \mathcal{A} -Hemiobol, Jerusalem?; 0,29 g. Bearded head of the Persian king crowned with a kidaris (jagged crown) to r.//Falcon with spread wings, in the r. field YHHDH (Judaea). Hendin no. 1059; Meshorer, Treasury 198 no. 16. Rare. Fine/nearly very fine Overbeck – Meshorer no. 3. 150,--

Macedonian Period, 333-302 BCE.

- 2004 \mathcal{A} -Hemiobol, Jerusalem?; 0,21 g. Head of a lion to r., degraded to the shape of an egg or pellet//YHWDH (Yehudah = Judaea) around a dove standing to r., head turned back. Hendin no. 1075c; Meshorer, Treasury 200 no. 27. Fine/good fine. Overbeck – Meshorer no. 8. 100,--

The species of the bird depicted is under discussion (dove, eagle, duck?), cf. Hendin 119 f., who tended to identify the bird as a duck and to link it to duck-shaped scale weights used by Babylonians and Egyptians. If the bird is a dove, this could be a pointer that the coin was minted not in Jerusalem but in a city with significant cults of Herakles (lion) and Aphrodite (dove).

Judaea as a Glacis of the Ptolemaic Empire (ca. 300-200 BCE)

After Alexander the Great's death in 323 BCE the Macedonian aristocrat and general, Ptolemaios, son of Lagos, had become satrap of Egypt. The country on the Nile was the most cohesive and also the richest part of Alexander's empire. Egypt was open to attack only from the Levant, and, therefore, from the very beginning the Ptolemies tried to secure the glacis, i.e. to bring the regions east of Egypt – especially the Sinai and Judaea – under their control.

We find some coins in the Samel collection which testify that as early as the reign of Ptolemy I (323/306-282 BCE) and later on, under Ptolemy II (285-246 BCE), the new monarchs of Egypt had brought Judaea under their domination. Coins showing the portrait of the dynasty's founder, the Macedonian eagle combined with Ptolemy's title of king in Greek and the Hebrew inscription YHWH show clearly what happened with Judaea.

The attractive hemidrachm in Samel's collection, minted in the last years of Ptolemy II's reign, clearly relates that, after Alexander's conquest of the East, the land of the Jews had gained nothing except new masters. This historically extremely significant piece of money is one of the rarest Jewish coins. Around the beginning of the 2nd c. BCE, when the empire of the Ptolemies began to weaken, Judaea fell under the sway of the Seleucids, from which it would be freed only by the Hasmoneans in 129 BCE.

Overbeck – Meshorer no. 5 and 23 with enlarged photo = Lorber, Ptolemaic Empire I 388 no. 712 ("This unique coin is of exceptionally fine style for the Judah series. The dies were probably commissioned from outside the mint. The idealized portrait of Ptolemy I reflects changes to his iconography at all mints following the reform of 261/0."); Meshorer, Treasury 200 no. 31 and plate 4 with enlarged photo of this coin. Solely due to its weight this coin forms an exception from the other coins issued by the Ptolemies: For the character of this coinage cf. Hendin, Jewish Coinage, 124: "The Yehud coins ... of the Ptolemaic period are local mint Ptolemaic issues. All of the coins of the Yehud series are fractional units, mostly lighter than one gram, and there is not a single full unit coin (shekel or stater) known to exist".

Coins of the Hasmonaean Dynasty (135/129 – 37 BCE)

Hyrcanus I (Yehohanan), Alexander Jannaeus (Yehonatan/Yonatan) and Antigonus (Mattathias) are those rulers of the Hasmonaean dynasty who certainly minted coins, whereas Aristobulos I (Yehudah) may have also produced his own money during his very short reign. Coins formerly attributed to Aristobulos II (Yehudah) and Hyrcanus II are now ascribed to other Hasmonaean rulers, cf. the different attributions in the exhibition catalogue by Overbeck – Meshorer. As far as we know the Hasmonaeans only minted bronze coins. It is not clear whether the Hasmonaeans usurped the right to mint coins, or whether they were formally entrusted with it. At any rate, finally they used the minted prutot not only to improve the economic conditions in their realm but also to proclaim their newly won power which, since Alexander Jannaeus proclaimed himself king, was based on the holding of two titles, that of the high priest (KWHN HGDL) and that of the king (MLK). The Synhedrion of the Jews (HBR HYHWDYM), which also appears in the inscriptions of the Hasmonaean coin, may have been able to restrict the king's and high priest's power, but John Hyrcanus I seems to have held the office of a president of this council as well, being named as "head of the Jewish" council.

The Samel collection comprises all common Hasmonaeian types (anchor, cornucopia, pomegranate, star, lily, wreathed inscription, ears of grain, palm frond) as well as very rare pieces such as the double prutah, minted by John Hyrcanus and showing a helmet, and a prutah, minted by the last Hasmonaeian Mattathias, when Herodes the Great had already won the Roman Senate's support in despoising him. Mattathias's coin is, in antiquity, the only Jewish piece of money that depicts the table of show-breads and the Menorah. The frequently used anchor image traces back to Seleucid coins, since the anchor was a kind of Seleucid coat of arms (cf. A. Mehl, Seleukos Nikator und sein Reich. 1. Teil. Seleukos' Leben und die Entwicklung seiner Machtposition, Louvain 1986, 98-101: Apoll und der Anker; W. Widmer, Zum Ankerzeichen der Seleukiden, MÖNG 47, 2007, 97-115). The double cornucopia is a Ptolemaic invention, so that anchor and double cornucopia reflect Judaea's location between these two big powers and the resulting dependencies. On the other hand we encounter first tentative approaches to emphasise Jewish identity using Jewish symbols, which, however, could also be understood as Greek symbols with a totally different meaning. It is obvious from the above that the coins of the Hasmonaeian dynasty especially mirror the precarious situation of the re-established Jewish state, exposed to the moods of fast-changing rulers who reigned dying empires and accordingly behaved unpredictably, the appearance of Rome's cynical warlords on the Levantine stage, and an increased pressure of Hellenisation (cf. Kasher).

Cf. Lykke 44, who falling back on Romanoff 50 f. discusses the problem whether the depicted flower is to identify with a lily or a rose. At any rate, the representation of the lily seems to be influenced by Rhodian coins which show a rose. For the meaning of the lily cf. Romanoff 45-51 and Lykke 45 f. who characterises the symbol's development from a „sign of Judaea and Jerusalem“ to a „central image ... within Jewish coin iconography“. It may be sufficient to cite verse 14.6 from the Book of Hosea: „I will be as the dew unto Israel: he shall grow as the lily, and cast forth his roots as Lebanon“

Cf. Meshorer, Treasury 36, where he characterises the helmet as a symbol of leadership and authority and asked the question whether it had to do with John's new title of R'Š ḤBR HYHWDYM. Ch.-G. Schwentzel, Images du pouvoir et fonctions des souverains Hasmonéens, Revue Biblique 2009, 368-386, esp. 371 f. may be right, when he underlines that the helmet should be interpreted as a reference to the modern hellenistic weaponry of John's Jewish army and to the king's successful expansion that made him into a new David whose identification mark was the helmet. We may assume that this coin is a 'historical coin' minted for a specific event in John's life. Cf. also Lykke 40, who discusses the problem whether the coin should be attributed to Hyrcanus II. and D.M. There is some disagreement as to whether these coins were minted at the beginning or at the end of Mattathias's reign, cf. I. Goldstein – J.-Ph. Fontanille, The Small Denominations of Mattathias Antigonus: Die Classification and Interpretations, Israel Numismatic Review 8, 2013, 55-71. For the symbolic meaning of the Menorah cf. Romanoff, Jewish Symbols on Ancient Jewish Coins, New York 1944 (1971), 33-37; J. Voß, Die Menora. Gestalt und Funktion des Leuchters im Tempel zu Jerusalem, Freiburg (CH)/Göttingen 1993, 69.

Herodian Dynasty, 40 BCE-96 CE

Herod the Great was not a native of the Jewish heartland Judaea. He was the son of an Idumaean aristocrat and his Nabataean/Arabic wife Kypros. Although he carries the epithet 'the Great', he was a puppet of the Romans all his life, and exactly the same is true for his sons and his later descendants. Even his access to power was facilitated by the Romans, who utilised his ambition and will to power in order to eliminate the last Hasmonaean king Mattathias who was supported by Rome's archenemies, the Parthians.

The Senate proclaimed Herod as king and by marrying the Hasmonaean Mariamme he was able to win greater legitimacy. Herod was a highly flexible politician, and C. Cassius, the murderer of Caesar, as well as M. Antonius and Augustus were his supporters and patrons. Herod especially profited from Augustus's favour. The winner of the Roman civil war confirmed Herod's title of king, enlarged his kingdom by assigning wider territories in the periphery of Judaea to him, especially important being seaports which established his state an access to the sea.

It was, however, the grant of areas being settled by a mixed population caused many problems in particular, the more so as Herod claimed absolute power and demanded unconditional obedience. However, he could take a pride in reigning over a kingdom whose size resembled King David's mythical realm. It was essential that Augustus more or less backed him all his life.

Herod was one of the greatest patrons and financiers of buildings in his time. He embellished the Temple in Jerusalem, in order to win the Jewish people as supporters, but the orthodox Jews had reservations against the king and his unlimited claims to power. His building activities were not limited to his own realm but he also donated or at least supported buildings in Greece and other parts of the Roman Empire. His at least ten marriages were the basis for dynastic murders and executions, which culminated in the violent death of his designated heir some days before his own death. The killing of his own children may have provided the template for the child murders in Bethlehem, as related by Matthew in the New Testament.

After Herod's death his realm was dismantled. Augustus, always aware of power, welcomed the fragmentation of Herod's kingdom by its distribution to different heirs.

Although Herod was an important ruler he only minted small bronze coins. The reason for this was that Augustus had monopolised the minting of gold and silver coins for himself. The designs of Herod's coins are, for the most part, quite unspectacular, but some of them are still not convincingly explained, e.g. the cross within a diadem. A galley may allude to the development of the harbour of Caesarea Maritima. Herod's main heir, who had been given Judaea, was his son Archelaus who never gained the title of king, but had to content himself with role and title of an ethnarch. In 6 CE after a ten years reign he was dethroned by Augustus and sent to Vienne in Gaul. After his banishment Roman prefects administered Judaea. Archelaus's coins show traditional designs such as the cornucopia, the anchor and the helmet. Only the image of a galley or a galley's prow may have a certain interest. It is discussed whether it alludes to a journey to Rome or to the seaport of Caesarea Maritima. Archelaus's brother Antipas had inherited Galilee and the Peraea in 4 BCE. He reigned over his territory as a tetrarch. The famous dance of Salome and the execution of John the Baptist has kept his name alive. In 39 CE Antipas was accused of insurrection against Rome and banished to Lugdunum Convenarum in Aquitania. The main design of Archelaus's coins is the palm frond. It refers to the palm trees around his capital Tiberias, and to this day Twerja's city badge shows three palm trees.

Herod's son Philip (4 BCE - 34 CE) inherited only a small territory of his father's former realm. He reigned over Gaulanitis, Batanaea, Trachonitis and Paneas as a tetrarch. He made Caesarea Paneas, later named Caesarea Philippi, his capital. He was the first Jewish potentate who minted coins with his own portrait. In Caesarea Paneas, he erected a temple in honour of Augustus. When he died in 34 BC his tetrarchy was added to the Roman province of Syria.

In 37 CE, however, Philip's territories expanded by some further areas which were given to Herod Agrippa I who was a grandchild of Herod the Great. He was educated in Rome at the imperial court. Since he was intimately linked with Caligula, it is not surprising that the latter, when he became emperor in 37 CE, conferred the title of a king on Agrippa I. Caligula's successor, the emperor Claudius, also transferred to him the province of Judaea, which, since 6 CE, had been administered by Roman prefects, so that Agrippa I more or less ruled over the former kingdom of Herod the Great. Agrippa first resided in Caesarea Paneas, later in Tiberias. When he unexpectedly died in 44, the emperor Claudius did not confer the entire kingdom to his son Agrippa II. Rome had no longer any confidence in mighty Jewish kings who wished to be more than puppets on a string pulled by Rome.

Agrippa I minted very interesting coins which emphasised that he was a reliable ally of Rome. His royal self-esteem is reflected by a baldachin, fundamentals of his power are alluded to by three ears of corn highlighting the fertility of his realm.

In 44 Claudius had restored the Roman subprovince of Judaea and granted Agrippa II only a few territories around and to the north of the Lake of Galilee. Although his area of control did not cover Judaea Agrippa II possessed the right to appoint the High Priest in Jerusalem. In 66 CE, when the Great Revolt broke out, Agrippa tried to act as mediator, but finally he was forced to flee. The uprisers saw him for what he really was: a dependant of Rome and a member of the Jewish aristocracy. Agrippa felt himself forced to support the Roman's suppression of the Great Revolt so that he, like them, could feel like a victor. His coins very often show the winged Roman Victory and other designs celebrating Rome's or the Flavians' victory. Agrippa II, the last member of the Herodian dynasty, died sometime between 93 and 100 CE.

In the Samel collection, besides many coins minted during his long reign, we find a 100-shekel weight of limestone, which is dated to the 5th year of Agrippa's reign and signed by a certain Athamas. In this case we are not confronted with a rare Greek mythological name but with the Jewish name Adam in Greek camouflage.

Lykke 67-71 does not accept the commonly heard identification of this helmet which is adorned with a star with a pilos, the famous cap of the Dioscuri. She rather thinks that we are shown Herod's personal helmet and that Herod wanted to insert himself into the tradition of Alexander and the Hellenistic kings who presented themselves helmeted or had their helmets depicted on coins. This may be right, but we should also consider whether this helmet should represent King David's famous helmet that could have had the symbolic power to awaken ideas of a new Jewish Empire. Cf. D.J. Jacobson, Military Helmet or Dioscuri Motif on Herod the Great's Largest Coin?, Israel Numismatic Review 2, 2007, 93-101.

Neither the identification of the plant alluded to on the obv. nor its exact meaning is clear. There is some reason to believe that the plant, whether it is identified as a poppy capsule or a pomegranate, may have to do with a Samaritan cult in honour of Demeter and Persephone; cf. the discussion of Lykke 60-63.

The writing mistake may have resulted from the use of two writing directions: In line one the die engraver began to write the Greek inscription from the left to the right but then continued to write from the right to the left as it is usual for Hebrew texts.

The year 24=20/21 of Antipas's reign was the year of Tiberias's foundation. The plant depicted on the coins of Tiberias, which was situated at the western shore of the Sea of Galilee and which served Herod Antipas as residence, is interpreted by most numismatists as a reed as well as a palm frond, e.g. Lykke 87 f. I think it is utterly impossible that the city of Tiberias made use of two heraldic plants or changed its emblem in such a short period of time. The coinage at the end of Herod's minting demonstrates that the palm tree and a date cluster could serve as Tiberias's coat of arms. Therefore, we should also identify the plants on the earliest coins, which may look like reed stems, as awkwardly shaped palm fronds. The city of Tiberias/Twerja and the surrounding fertile lands produce dates in great quantities up until our time. This finds its expression in Twerja's municipal coat of arms decorated with three palm trees. There is also the question as to why the citizens of Tiberias should have chosen the reed as their heraldic plant.

Many of Philip's coins show the facade of a temple that was dedicated to Roma and Augustus. It is mentioned by Josephus (Bellum Judaicum I 404 and Antiquitates Judaicae XV 363). It may be possible that the ruins of a temple excavated at 3 km distance from Paneas at Omrit are the remains of this Augusteum, cf. J. A. Overman, D.N. Schowalter (eds.), The Roman Temple Complex at Horvat Omrit: An Interim Report (BAR International Series 2205), Oxford 2011. Its remnants suggest that the coins minted by Philip give a true image of the temple's appearance. It is significant that the name of Augustus appears in the dative case, as the temple is dedicated to him.

Lykke 100 is right when she annotates that the baldachin/canopy traces back to the Assyrian kings and that in the case of Agrippa it may underline his royal dignity. At any rate, “the unusual motif does not seem to find any immediate parallels anywhere else”. In the Greek world baldachins were used to cover altars and the statuettes of gods, cf. W. Held, Wo stand die Hera von Samos?, IstMitt 45, 1995, 13-23, esp. 20 and M. Weber, Baldachine und Statuenschreine, Rom 1990.

The authority which issued this medaillon is not mentioned, what is very unusual in the case of circulation coins. It was apparently minted in the last year of Agrippa's reign, when his brother Herod had already been established as king of Chalkis. Due to the two dates given in the exergue of the medaillons (L Z = 42/3 and L H = 43/4) the background of the scenery depicted on them becomes obvious and seems in no way strange. The coin shows that the two royal brothers Agrippa and Herod had sent golden wreaths (aurum coronarium) to Claudius because of his victory over the British tribes in South and Middle England, perhaps on the occasion of his triumph De Britannis. The rev. of the medaillon seems to underline that Agrippa I as a friend and ally of the Romans had sent some Jewish troops to support the conquest of Britannia.

The perhaps hellenistic foundation of Panias – named after a sacred cave of the god Pan – was refounded by Herod the Great's son Philipp as Caesarea Philippi. In the time of Nero the city adopted the name of Neronias, cf. G.M. Cohen, The Hellenistic Settlements in Syria ..., Berkeley/Los Angeles/London 2006, 264 f., Lykke 113, and Meshorer, Treasury, 105 who dates these coins in the time after the outbreak of the Great Revolt. Lykke 112 annotates that Caesarea Paneas was Agrippa II's main mint.

The identity of the veiled women is disputed. Whereas some scholars identified her with Livia, the wife of the first emperor, some others thought that she might be Berenike, the sister of king Agrippa and mistress of Titus. Both propositions are unconvincing. The coin was minted in the year 79/80, exactly in the time when Titus had minted a coin to commemorate his mother Domitilla (RIC no. 262).

Roman praefecti, 6-66

In 4 BCE Herod the Great died. The Roman Emperor Augustus used the situation to undermine the strength of the Jewish State. First of all, the Roman procurator Sabinus plundered Herod's treasures and even robbed the temple treasury in Jerusalem of 400 talents. The ensuing riots were put down by Roman soldiers with great violence and Herod's kingdom was divided into several dominions. For that reason, Herod's son and principal heir Archelaus inherited only the central parts of Herod's kingdom comprising Judaea, Idumaea, Samaria and above all Jerusalem, but almost all peripheral areas were given to other descendants of the late king. Several cities of the so-called Dekapolis were freed from Jewish supremacy and were granted the status of free cities within the Roman province of Syria. Herod's eldest son and main heir, Archelaus, was not proclaimed king, but only given the title of an ethnarch, i.e. "ruler of a tribe" on the principle that he should first earn the title of a king by ruling in a manner pleasing Rome. But it turned out quite differently. In 6 CE Augustus deposed Archelaus, exiled him to Gaul, and incorporated his ethnarchy into the province of Syria. From 6 to 41 CE the Syrian sub-province of Judaea was administrated by praefecti, officers of equestrian rank whose first assignment was to maintain law and order and to guarantee the subprovince's payment of taxes. Most of the Roman praefecti are mentioned by the Jewish historian Josephus.

Coponius, 6/7-8/9 CE (3 years) *
 M. Ambibulus, 9/10-11/12 CE (3 years) *
 Annius Rufus, 12/13-14/15 CE (3 years)
 Valerius Gratus, 15/16-25/26 CE (11 years)*
 Pontius Pilate, 26/-35/36 CE (10 years)*
 Marcellus, 36/37 CE (several months)
 Marullus, 37/38-40/41 CE (3 ½ year)

In 41 CE the Roman emperor Claudius transferred the Judaeian subprovince to a grandson of Herod the Great: Herod Agrippa I. Good personal relationships may have been the basis for this decision. But when Agrippa I died prematurely in 44 CE, his kingdom was again integrated into the province of Syria, and again a Roman praefectus, subordinated to the governor of Syria (not a procurator, who would have been the governor of an autonomous province), administrated the Jewish heartlands. This was the administrative situation when the 1st Jewish War/Great Revolt broke out in 66 CE.

Under the supervision of six of these praefecti – here marked by an asterisk – small bronze coins were minted in Judaea. The legends of these coins, which have a diameter of ca. 17 mm and a weight of 2-2,5 g, were in Greek, not in Hebrew. The names of the praefecti do not appear on these coins and the issues can be attributed to a certain praefectus only by an emperor's regnal years, which occur on all these coins. The sequence and chronology of the praefecti must be deduced from other sources, mainly from Josephus and inscriptions.

These coins do not bear the image of the reigning emperor on their obverses, either because the emperor's portrait might have been found objectionable by the Jewish people or because there was a tradition of using an image other than that of the emperor's portrait on very small change. However, the references of these coins pointing to a particular emperor or to members of his family, for example the wives or children, as well as to the emperor's regnal years must be understood as a hint that this money was issued following imperial orders, or at least with imperial permission, at any rate under the praefecti's supervision. In the beginning the choice of images may have been made in consultation with the leaders of the Jews and with their approval. Afterwards, beginning with the later issues of Pontius Pilate, the coin images show two key items of Roman religious cult – the lituus and simpulum, whilst under Porcius Festus as praefectus, they depict a pile of weapons taken from enemies of the Romans. This all points in another direction - if Jews would still have had a say on decisions concerning the images of these coins, they would never have agreed to such a choice. It seems clear that Pontius Pilate tried to intensify the Emperor cult in Judaea, but it is debatable whether he really wanted to provoke the Jews, at any rate he was apparently willing to risk the consequences. The change in policy may have been encouraged by the death of the highly esteemed Livia, mother of the reigning emperor Tiberius and the wife of the first emperor Augustus, in 29 CE. Thus, the praefecti's coinage is a significant historical witness to the relationship between the Jews and their Roman masters in Judaea.

As far as the datings are concerned it now seems clear that the dates of coins minted during the reign of Augustus do not refer to the Actian Era, but to the regnal years of Augustus, counted from the year 27 BCE. Otherwise, if the year 33, which appears on some of these coins, were to be linked with the Actian Era, such coins would have been minted in 3 CE, i. e. in a period when Archelaus was still ethnarch of Judaea.

It is still totally uncertain whether these coins were minted in Jerusalem or Caesarea Maritima, where the praefecti had their headquarters. The assumption that these coins' mint was located in Jerusalem is supported by the fact that the style of the praefecti's coins is very similar to the Herodian prutot which were minted in Jerusalem.

The name of these small pieces is far from being clear; some numismatists and scholars call them prutot, others quadrantes. It may be that the Romans understood these coins as quadrantes so that 64 of them corresponded to a Roman denarius. The Jewish people who used them for their daily business may have considered them as followers of the prutah coinage of king Herod or Archelaus and therefore as a Jewish coinage. However, the designs and unspoken messages on these later issues tell us that such a belief was a self-deception.

The coins of the praefecti are no aesthetic highlights, but they provide the period atmosphere in Judaea before the Great Revolt and may reveal some of the reasons which drove Judaea towards disaster. In this respect, these coins form an essential component of Samel's tale of the Jewish people. Some of the praefecti such as Pontius Pilate, Tiberius Claudius Felix and Porcius Festus are mentioned in the Holy Bible, and a lituus coin of Pontius Pilate played a role in the discussion of the authenticity of the Shroud of Turin.

- The lily is an old Jewish symbol which was already used as a coin image by John Hyrcanus and Alexander Jannaeus. The shoshannah could be understood as a symbol for Israel, cf. Romanoff 45-51; Meshorer, Treasury, 34 f. Taylor 2006, 558 points out that Greeks and Romans linked this flower with Hera or Juno with whom the empress Livia was associated. Therefore, the lily's polysemy made such a coin image eligible also for the Romans.

Great Revolt, 66-70/4

In the last decades before and after the middle of the 1st c. CE the Roman sub-province of Judaea was administered by equestrian prefects who looked down upon the Jewish people or at least showed an unconsiderate behaviour when dealing with them or with their sacred centre Jerusalem. The best known of these prefects was Pontius Pilate who had minted coins for everyday use in Judaea which showed Roman sacred objects. In particular the members of Rome's equestrian order trusted unreservedly in Rome's military strength and were totally convinced that the gods had chosen Rome to dominate the entire world. The increasing financial needs of Rome, boosted by the city's conflagration in July 64 and the lavish expenditures of its egomaniac emperor Nero, resulted in strong tax pressure all over the empire. In Judaea, the last prefect's recourse to money which belonged to the Temple was an effective method to compensate for tax payments not received, but in the end, in the early summer or autumn of 66 CE, it provoked the Jewish uprising which was called the Great Revolt.

However, the reasons for this war's outbreak were manifold. Besides the Roman prefects' insensitive behaviour in the province, stress in Judaea was amplified by ever-stronger tendencies towards an enhanced Hellenisation and Romanisation of the whole area. In particular this development was felt as a threat for Jewish life and identity. Especially the Greek cities in the region showed a more and more contemptuous attitude towards the Jewish minorities living within their walls. Nero's philhellenism may have emboldened the Greeks to practise all kinds of cultural arrogance. Therefore it is no wonder that, on the Jewish side, zealots gained more and more acceptance for their aim to drive Greeks and Romans away in order to resurrect Eretz Israel, the land that Jehovah had once given the Jews and which had flowered in the mythical eras of David and Solomon. The way there led through the establishment of a Jewish theocracy attached to the Temple. We should, however, keep in mind that different leaders of the rebels pursued different goals, which temporarily led to civil war-like conditions. First and foremost the poor people from the countryside appeared very open-minded towards the zealots' objectives. They hoped that they would be freed from the heavy burdens of Roman taxes and the levies payable to the Jewish landowners. The Great Revolt was not only a national-religious, but also a social uprising which was also directed against Jewish aristocracy.

What may be called initial successes such as the massacre of a Roman unit in Jerusalem and the slaughter of an entire legion awoke the illusion that the objectives set were achievable, i.e. that a small sub-province such as Judaea would be able to assert itself against the whole empire and its resources. Obviously not a few of the rebels believed in the authenticity of the tale about the struggle of David against Goliath. By suspending the daily prayers for the health and salvation of the Roman Emperor, the young priest Eleazar highlighted Judaea's formal withdrawal from the Roman Empire. Not least because of leading the followers to believe in the existence of a firmly established autonomous state Israel, the rebels began to mint their own coins as early as the first time of their uprising, after April 66 CE. The minting of large coins of very pure silver challenged the Roman emperors' sole right to mint gold and silver coins or to endow individual cities with the privileged right to do this. The rebels called their coins shekels of Israel. By using this name they underlined that they no longer felt as people of the Roman sub-province Judaea. By using paleo-Hebrew characters they tried to convey their backwards-looking objectives, especially the re-erection of a Jewish great empire. The Jewish shekels may also have been minted in order to serve cultic needs, i.e. to allow the Jews to pay their annual temple tax. In the time before the uprising the production of Tyrian shekels traditionally used for paying the temple tax, had ended (cf. Lykke 127-130). When the rebellion came to a provisional end with the conquest of the entire city of Jerusalem in September 70 CE, the uprisers' coinage had been minted for over five years. As coins of the 1st and 4th year are quite rare and coins of the 5th year extremely rare, it seems clear that minting had only begun later in the 1st year of the rebellion and that in the two last years the production of money decreased, most likely for a lack of silver. The precarious situation of the besieged is reflected by a coin legend which was used in the 4th year: "For the redemption of Zion", which may be understood as an appeal to God, to save his chosen people from a desperate situation. The war lasted so long because, following the death of Nero in 68, Vespasian and his son Titus did not know whose commands they should obey, what Rome's ultimate aims were, and how the defeated should be treated.

Most images on the rebels' coins refer to the Temple and the cult practised there. This is true for the chalice depicted on the obverses of shekel, half-shekel and quarter shekel pieces (cf. Lykke 133-136, who favours the idea that it is a vessel containing manna). The three pomegranates on these coins' reverses revive a traditional Jewish symbol. Pomegranates, being one of Israel's seven celebrated products, decorated the capitals of the two famous pillars, which stood at the entrance of Solomon's temple, as well as building structures of the 2nd Temple. Especially in connection with the legend "Jerusalem is holy", which surrounds the depiction of the pomegranates, this coin image may be understood as a reference to the Temple. The presentation of three pomegranates in the shape of a trefoil seems to indicate that the decoration of an architectural structure is depicted. The images showing a palm-tree with two baskets filled with fruit and a vine leaf and an amphora may have alluded to Judaea's fertility which was understood as a Jehovah-given gift to his chosen people. The four species – palm frond (lulav), citrus fruit (etrog), myrtle twig (hadassah) and willow twig (aravah) – refer to the Sukkoth feast.

The Samel collection comprises many rare pieces minted during the Great Revolt, a large number of them in choice preservation. Due to the fact that Josephus's 'Bellum Judaicum' allows us a very detailed insight into the Great Revolt, the Jewish coins minted during this period are those coins of the whole collection that most emphatically convey a suppressed people's desire for freedom, its illusory hopes to win back past grandeur, and their final fall in the fight against a hostile supremacy which found itself forced to exploit the uprising for its own objectives.

The Aftermaths of the Great Revolt – The Romans' Victory Celebrations and the Humiliation of the Defeated (70-81 CE)

In the beginning of September 70, in the final phase of the siege of Jerusalem, the whole city fell victim to flames; the gruesome scene is grippingly depicted in a painting by David Roberts. Finally, on the 7th of September Titus had gained control over the whole of the city. It was a conclusive moment, although the last Jewish resistance was not fully overcome until 74 with the capture of Massada. In Jerusalem, the stench of thousands of unburied corpses, the acrid smell of burning still in the air and the difficulties of catering for such a huge accumulation of armed forces were good reasons to leave Jerusalem as soon as possible. Therefore, in the following days, Titus performed the first punishment of Jewish captives: Some of them were immediately executed, some were saved for the triumphal procession in Rome or for circus games, which he planned to stage in several cities of the Near East, but most of the captives were sold into slavery. Having honoured the bravest of his soldiers Titus stationed the legio X Fretensis in Jerusalem. Escorted by two legions he then started an inspection tour through the cities of the Levant in order to lessen the strong tensions between natives and Jews which had affected many cities in this area. To achieve this, his mission was characterised by a demonstration of Roman strength and severe punishment of the rioters in order to deter everyone from a new uprising against Rome. It was blended with the public display of the new dynasty's glorious splendour. We can be sure that military parades, solemn offerings to the Greek and Roman gods and victory celebrations with cruel circus games formed the central part of Titus's festivities. Caesarea Maritima, Berytos, the Syrian Antioch and Zeugma on the Euphrates were stops during this highly political journey. In the meantime his father Vespasian had gained the power over the entire Roman Empire and had succeeded in establishing the Flavian dynasty in Rome. Titus combined the victory celebrations with highlighting both himself as the victor of the Great War and the new imperial family to which he belonged. That is why he linked the victory celebrations with birthday festivities for his brother in Caesarea Maritima on the 24th of October and for his father in Berytos on the 17th of November. During the games in Caesarea and Berytos hundreds of Jewish prisoners of war were killed.

It is most likely that on the occasion of these celebrations Titus minted aurei which he distributed to prominent citizens. They may have been produced by a mint that accompanied Titus and the two legions. The booty of Jerusalem had provided enough gold to mint such aurei, and it may even have been part of the Roman propaganda to emphasise that the gold originated from the Jewish Temple's treasuries. It is clear that these gold coins for special occasions were struck in relatively small quantities so that it is a great stroke of luck, if at all, that a single example has come down to us. For this reason we can be happy that a piece commemorating Vespasian's birthday celebration in Berytos is listed in Calicó's book, "The Roman Aurei" (= RPC II 1908), and a piece commemorating the birthday festivities for Domitian in Caesarea is preserved in Samel's collection. Both of them are, as far as we know, still unique today. On the reverses of these coins a large round shield, which takes up nearly the whole reverse of both aurei, is inscribed with IMP / T(itus) / CAESAR. The two crossed spears behind the shield allude to the Greek slogan of the doryketos or doryhalotos chora, the spear-won land. From the time of Alexander the Great the phrase had been used to describe the right of the victor to treat the vanquished enemy more or less as he wants. In this respect the two spears have the same meaning as the legend ΙΟΥΔΑΙΑΣ ΕΑ- ΛΩΚΥΙΑΣ (after Judaea had been captured) on some Caesarean coins minted at the same time as the aurei. The obverse of the example in the Samel collection is dedicated to Domitian Caesar, who bears the title of a princeps iuventutis: DOMITIANO CAESARI PR IV. Apparently, Domitian had borne this title since the day when the Roman senate recognized Vespasian as emperor and of his two sons as Caesars, that is since the 21st or 22nd of December 69 CE. The aureus of the Samel collection (lot 2334) shows the head of the youthful Caesar with fine, curled hair. It is more an idealized image of a young Caesar than the true portrait of Domitian. Obviously, its main objective is to generate sympathy for the youngest member of the dynasty. However, this coin had the opposite effect when it came into the hands of a Jew who had lived through the gruesome death of his fellow Jews. Around the young Caesar's portrait he scratched, in subtle Hebrew characters, the impious, but, in the situation, understandable wish: 'Death' or 'Die!'. Samel's unique coin has preserved this emotion through the centuries! The graffito makes this coin to an extremely important contemporary witness.

Bronze coins for minor transactions were struck in Caesarea Maritima, where Titus stayed for a longer time. Very likely they were struck not only for the use in the city of Caesarea but also for Judaea as a whole. These coins bear the legend ΙΟΥΔΑΙΑΣ ΕΑΛΩΚΥΙΑΣ, this is the Greek version of ΙΥΔΑΕΑ CAPTA, meaning '(minted after) the capture of Judaea' (lots 2348-2356). Apparently two denominations were coined which could be distinguished by their size. The smaller one had a diameter of 21 mm and shows a Victory/Nike inscribing a shield attached to a palm tree, the larger one with a diameter of 24 mm depicts a trophaion (trophy); to the right of it the kneeling personification of Judaea with her hands bound behind her back. She was obviously identified with an Amazon, as on the left side of the trophaion one sees a pelta shield and a spear, weapons typical for an Amazon.

Vespasian's successes in the Roman Civil War, which had broken out after the death of Nero, as well as his and his son's violent suppression of the Jewish rebellion were in particular designed to legitimise the new dynasty's rulership. The Jewish War was superelevated in order to create the impression that Vespasian and Titus had warded off one of the greatest threats to the Roman Empire. That is why the rebellion of a small part of a Roman province was unhistorically treated as being on par with the conquest of a barbarian area still outside the Empire. This background may explain the exceptional cruelties committed by the Romans as well as the different kinds of celebrations and the excessive activities to erect memorials.

Ostentatious cruelties such as the slaughter of Jewish rebels in the Empire's circuses should deter the Jews from a new uprising. A prophecy, spread over the whole of the Orient around the young Caesar's portrait had predicted that a new universal ruler (cosmocrator) would one day come from Judaea. Vespasian and Titus wanted to create the impression that this prediction was fulfilled with their accession to power. They stylised themselves as the bringer of eternal peace. In a solemn ceremony they closed the Gates of the temple of Janus. In order to highlight this achievement even further, they erected the precinct of the goddess Pax (Augusti): It was intended to host the most precious articles of the loot of Jerusalem. The Jews' sacred objects, once kept in the holy of holies of the Temple, are depicted in the doorway of Titus's arch which his brother Domitian dedicated to him posthumously. The arch's reliefs evoke the triumphal procession that Titus once celebrated together with his father. Another arch, that may have presented the same scenes, was dedicated to Vespasian, but has not survived. In contrast to Vespasian's triumphal arch the Amphitheatrum Flavium, better known under the name of Colosseum, is still one of the most impressive monuments of Rome. It is only some decades ago that the great German historian and epigraphist Geza Alföldy minutely examined the fixing holes of gilded bronze letters which belonged to an inscription attached to a door lintel of the Colosseum. This inscription once proclaimed that the amazing expensive building had been financed from the plunder of Judaea: looted possessions of Jerusalem's rich Jewish people, captives sold as slaves, the hoarded gold and silver from the Temple's treasuries, etc. Moreover, Vespasian extended the pomerium, the religious boundary around the city of Rome, in order to propagate that the Empire was enlarged by the conquest of Judaea. Finally, the new emperor decreed that the monetary amount that Jews had previously paid to their religious centre, the Temple in Jerusalem, should henceforth be used to fund the reconstruction of the temple of Jupiter Capitolinus that had burnt down during the course of fighting on the Capitoline hill on the 19th of December 69 CE. The Jews understood this as a mockery of their religious feelings and a humiliation of their people. Since this new tax was collected with utmost severity, even from people who only appeared to be Jews, unrest in the whole empire was inevitable.

The victory celebrations climaxed in the triumphal procession of Vespasian and Titus, at which the most spectacular loot and the most prominent captives, who were strangled afterwards, were presented and accompanied the imperial family – Vespasian and Titus riding on a quadriga as well as Domitian riding on a horse – on their way to the Capitole hill. On the occasion of the triumph over the Jews aurei, denarii and bronze coins were minted in Rome; some of them may have been distributed during the procession. Their legends heralded the conquest or the total defeat of Judaea using phrases such as 'Iudaea capta' or 'Iudaea devicta'. Coins which celebrated Vespasian's and Titus's victory over the Jews and meant to humiliate the defeated, were struck until Titus's death in 81 CE. These coins were intended to justify the Flavian emperors' accession to power and to bestow an aura of being victorious and invincible. Titus's successor Domitian, who had no part in the suppression of the Great Revolt, dropped the issue and stylised himself as a victor over the Germans.

This coin was produced by a moving mint which accompanied Titus on his journey through the most important cities of the Levant. We know from the Jewish historian Josephus that Titus, having captured Jerusalem, travelled from Judaea to Antioch. The son of Vespasian escorted by two legions wanted to be celebrated as a victor and to discourage the Jewish people in the Near East cities from a new uprising against Rome. On October the 24th 70 he celebrated his brother's birthday in Caesarea Maritima. On this occasion 2,500 Jewish prisoners of war were slaughtered in the city's amphitheatre (or hippodrome). Obviously, during these festivities, such gold coins were produced in relatively low numbers and presented to Caesarea's most important dignitaries. A similar coin with the same rev. was minted for the birthday celebrations in honour of Titus's father Vespasian. They took place in Berytos/Beirut on the 17th of November 70. It is likely that these memorial coins were minted from the gold which the Romans plundered from the sacred treasure of the Temple in Jerusalem. We can learn from the two graffiti that the recipient scratched an N into the coin's rev., which may be understood as the initial letter of his name or that of the Greek word ,nike' which means victory. A short time later this man used the memorial coin for payment purposes. It came into the hands of a Jew who could not refrain from scratching the graffiti "death" or "die!" in Hebrew letters on both sides of Domitian's portrait. This coin is a historical document of the utmost importance.

Nerva's main political objective, propagated on coins, was to create iustitia and Aequitas/justice and legal equality in the Roman Empire. The Latin word 'calumnia' means harassment, especially judicial harassment. Vespasian had decreed that all Jews, who until the destruction of the Jewish temple had paid two drachms/denarii to the temple in Jerusalem, henceforth had to pay this amount to the temple of Jupiter Capitolinus in Rome. When this tax was collected with the utmost severity during the reign of Domitian, the question arose who was a Jew within the meaning of this law. Especially since not a few ethnic Jews had converted to Christianity, the question came up whether these people also had to pay this tax. It is very obvious that Nerva took measures to settle these problems by decreeing that only the confession to Judaism and not ethnic affiliation obliged Jewish people to pay the 2 drachm-tax. By this legal reorganisation, the Jews, who continued to observe their ancestral religious traditions and paid the tax became members of an accepted religious community – in stark contrast to the Christians. Regardless of whether this coin was minted before the Bar Kokhba revolt or afterwards, it has nothing to do with the real circumstances of Hadrian's visit in Judaea that took place in the early summer of 130 (cf. H. Halfmann, Itinera principum, Stuttgart 1986, 207; A.R. Birley, Hadrian. The restless emperor, London/New York 1997, 231 f.). All the Adventus coins minted in the last years of Hadrian's reign show stereotypical welcoming ceremonies. They should evoke a reminiscence to Hadrian's extensive travel activities in many parts of the Roman Empire. In the case of Judaea the coins gloss over the enormous tensions in the province, especially caused by Hadrian's dislike, if not hatred of Jews and the Jews' desire to rebuild the destroyed temple. "The thoroughly Greek character of Judaea on these coins gives the impression that it had become a Hellenised province like any other in the east" (so Birley, l.c.). In the Bar Kokhba revolt Rome had to experience that this was a fatal error. In descriptions of these coins the small figures accompanying Judaea are called "children"; they may be understood as Judaea's children, but they are adults who are about to welcome Hadrian by swinging palm fronds, just like many Jews did when Jesus entered Jerusalem. Hadrian's and Judaea's size is based on their significance and not on their real proportions.

The Bar Kokhba-uprising (132-136 CE)

In contrast to our knowledge of the Great Revolt the information available about the Bar Kokhba-uprising is extremely limited. We feel the lack of a historian like Josephus who provided us profound insights into the backgrounds of the first Jewish uprising against the Romans and into the feelings and aims of the opponents of this war. Therefore many questions, especially those concerning the causes for the Bar Kokhba revolt, are still controversial. This lack of literary sources makes coins in particular important witnesses of the Bar Kokhba insurrection. This is even more true, as the rebels used the coins for propagating their ideological messages.

As regards the outbreak of the rebellion it seems clear that Hadrian's philhellenic policy generally endeavoured to further Hellenisation in all parts of the Greek East. Supporting Greeks and Macedonians, who had settled in the Levant, and all those indigenous people, who had adopted Greek culture, Hadrian's activities generated strong opposition of the Jews, who felt hindered in preserving their own culture and identity. Added to this was Hadrian's extremely hostile attitude against the Jews who had revolted in many parts of the Eastern Roman Empire, when his adoptive father Trajan fought against the Parthians. The brutal repression of these riots strengthened radical Jewish movements especially in Judaea. Apart from this, the memory of the total destruction of the Temple and the brutal treatment of the defeated countrymen by the Flavians inspired the Jews' thoughts of retaliation and a change of the current state of affairs, especially the rebuilding of the Temple. In this tense situation the only thing left was the appearance of charismatic leaders like Eleazar the priest and Simon Bar Kokhba, who, as the military leader of a guerilla army, became the heart and soul of the movement. Simon carried the title of a Nasi of Israel. Nasi was very often used for describing the position of the Sanhedrin's president.

Shortly after the outbreak of the uprising in 132 CE the insurgents initiated the minting of coins, silver coins as well as bronze. The silver coinage consisted of two denominations, the sela (a tetradrachm of around 14 g) and the zuz (a drachm around 3.3 g), whereas the bronze coins included large, medium and small coins. The legends of these coins were written with Paleo-Hebrew characters, unused in Judaea for centuries, meant to connect this new planned state with a glorious Jewish past, but in reality and in many instances the designers and die cutters showed their unfamiliarity with these old characters.

These coins, when they were found at archaeological excavations, were used as testimonies concerning the problem of which parts of Judaea were controlled by the insurgents. But we should not forget that money passed from hand to hand, which means that even coins found in archaeological contexts only show a limited indication for such questions. However, there is overwhelming evidence that the rebels did not succeed in bringing Jerusalem under their control. The coin inscription 'For the freedom of Israel' points in the same direction: Jerusalem remained an unachieved target of the riot. The coin image of the sela depicts the facade of the second Temple and brings the idea of a rebuilding of the Temple into play. The most complicated problem is the identification of the object placed between the two semi-pedestals. We should eliminate the idea that the Table of Show-Breads or even the Ark of Covenant (if it still existed in the second Temple) – at any rate, both concealed from public view – are depicted. I believe that it shows the main entrance gate – slightly offset inwards – with its metal fittings and the arch above its lintel. Other coin images present objects which had a function in the cult practised in the destroyed temple (lulav, string instruments, trumpets, vessels) or which allude to Israel and its fertility (bunch of grapes, palm tree, palm frond) generally.

All the money minted by the rebels was overstruck on coins circulating in the areas controlled by them. There is some evidence that both sides of the original coins were smoothed or hammered before they were overstruck, but only in a few cases a coin's old design was totally overlaid by the new die's image. We may assume that the rioters destroyed the original coin designs with a certain pleasure, but in my opinion this was not the central idea for this way of minting their own coins. I think that people living in the rebel areas were bound to use only money which was overstruck by the insurgents, for their payments. They had to bring their coins to places where they could be overstruck and had to pay a certain amount for this service. By this means the new coinage would contribute to finance the insurgency. There may have existed one or two central mints which produced the dies for these operations, but the aim of a comprehensive metamorphosis of the money in circulation could only be achieved when the transformation of coins could be performed in as many places as possible.

The Bar Kokhba coins are of particular importance as they were the last real Jewish coins in antiquity. The Samel collection presents a relative large number of Bar Kokhba coins and provides the opportunity to acquire even very rare die combinations in often very good preserved specimens.

This medal recalls to a brutal massacre of Jews in the course of the Holy League's campaign against the Turks in 1686. Ofen/Buda (today a part of the modern Hungarian capital Budapest) had been under Turkish rule since 1541. During the Turkish domination of Ofen a large part of the Christian population had fled into the neighbouring Habsburgian Empire, whereas many Gipsies and Jews emigrated to Ofen so that they became dominant in Turkish Buda. After the Turkish failure in the Second Siege of Vienna in 1683 Emperor Leopold I saw an opportunity to conquer Hungary. Supported by the Pope, King Jan Sobieski of Poland, and the Republic of Venice he started his counter-strike in 1684, but this first siege of Buda failed. Two years later, in 1686, the Holy League conducted a new campaign against the Turks and attacked Ofen again. After two months of besiegement, on the 2nd of September 1686, the League's soldiers succeeded in entering and plundering the city. They slaughtered not only the Turkish habitants of the city but also many of the Jews living there. About 1000 of them were massacred and their homes looted, hundreds of them sold into slavery. Ofen's mosques and synagogues were destroyed, and the dead bodies of Jews and Turks were thrown into the Danube. In 1687 the Austrians defeated the Turks in the battle of Mohacs once more. In view of these successes the Hungarians assigned the Hungarian crown to the Habsburgian dynasty. In this respect the medal commemorates a turning point of world history.

As early as the French Revolution Jews living in France had been given the same rights as other Frenchmen. The 'Declaration of the Rights of Man and of the Citizen' guaranteed freedom of religion. Napoleon tried to enforce these principles in the countries which he had conquered. Although he took a critical stance against Jewish moneylenders and took steps to prevent their activities, he made efforts to better the Jews' situation all over his empire. In France he took a lot of measures to integrate Jewish people in French society in order to eliminate the differences between them and the majority of the population. Many Jews feared the complete loss of identity by total assimilation. However, he invited the French Jews to elect representatives which formed a council named Sanhedrin and which should pursue the interests of the Jewish community before the French Government. The Hebrew word Sanhedrin/Council traces back to the Greek word for council: synhedrion. Jean Bertrand Andrieu (1761-1822) was a major French medalist. Dominique-Vivant Denon (formerly known as De Non, 1747-1825) was the Directeur général du Musée central des arts (since 1804 Musée Napoléon, today's Louvre) and also the director of the French institute for the minting of medals.

The synagogue at the Friedberger Anlage in Frankfurt offered space for more than 1600 worshippers. It was built after the plans of the renowned Berlin architects Peter Jürgensen and Jürgen Bachmann. Representatives of the Prussian Government, of the City of Frankfurt and of the Jewish communities had taken part in its inauguration in 1907. During the pogroms in November 1938 the synagogue was attacked with incendiary devices in order to destroy it. The building survived these assaults, but the Nazis stated that the building was in danger of collapsing and threatening public security. Therefore, they forced the Jewish Community to demolish it at their own cost. During 2nd World War a high-rise bunker was built in its place. It still exists today, but is now used for permanent exhibition documenting Jewish life in Frankfurt's Ostend.

Following the ideas of his brother Napoleon, Hieronymus, king of Westphalia (1807-1813), issued a decree granting equal rights for the Jews living in his kingdom. Even after Napoleon's fall and the end of the kingdom of Westphalia, many of these reforms remained in full force and effect. In 1833 the full equality of Jews living in the electorate of Hessen-Kassel was regulated by law. Abraham Abramson (1754-1811) was one of the most important German-Jewish medallists and master of the Prussian mint. He created the designs and engraved the dies for more than 250 medals.

Moses's depiction with horns (in this case with ram's horns) traces back to the book Exodus's Latin translation by the church father Hieronymus. He translated the Hebrew text of Exodus 34, 30 into Latin: "videntes autem Aaron et filii Israhel cornutam Mosi faciem timuerunt prope accedere." (Aaron and all the people of Israel saw Moses, and behold, the skin of his face shone, and they were afraid to come near him). There can be no doubt that the Hebrew text wanted to say that Moses's face was glorified, when he came down from mount Sinai with the two tablets inscribed with Yahweh's commandments. To all appearances, Hieronymus thought that in Hebrew "horned" was a metaphoric expression for a luminous face reflecting the glory of God. It was quite late in West European art – namely in the High Middle Ages – that the visual arts started to represent Moses horned. The most famous representation of 'Moses cornutus' is Michelangelo's statue in St. Peter in Rome. Ram's horns as Moses's head ornament – as in the case of this medallion – may have been chosen for their resemblance to the shofar which was a well known symbol for Judaism.

One of the most widely read books of the German Jewish philosopher Moses Mendelssohn, the grandfather of the composer Felix Mendelssohn Bartholdy, was "Phaedon oder über die Unsterblichkeit der Seele" (Phaedo or On the Immortality of Souls), published in 1767. On this book's title-engraving, Socrates takes a look at a skull on whose top a butterfly is sitting. This medallion depicts a section of this image. In order to understand it, it is important to know that the Greek word for butterfly "psyche" can also mean "soul". The butterfly becomes a suitable image for the soul's immortality, if one realises the fantastic change from egg to caterpillar and chrysalis and finally the last change into a richly coloured butterfly.

In history again and again Jews were forced to convert to Christianity, but it also happened that some of them voluntarily became Christians. In either case many Christians mistrusted the converts and suggested other motives than religious ones for their conversion. Christian suspicions against converted Jews are reflected by this medallion. The scene on its obverse traces back to Martin Luther’s advice to a certain Menius who was a preacher at Eisenach: "Si denuo Judaeus baptizandus sibi offeratur, eum se in pontem Albis ducturum, et suspenso de colle lapide in aquis praecipitaturum, ne mutata animi sententia, baptismum convitiis insectur." (If once more a Jew offers himself for being baptized, he should be led to a bridge over the river Elbe and with a millstone around his neck pushed into the waters, in order to avoid that he after having changed his mind blasphemes baptism). Cf. O.A. Wolf, Zwei auf Judentaufen bezügliche Medaillen, Monatsschrift für Geschichte und Wissenschaft des Judenthums 44, 1900, 539-541 who bases himself on J.J. Schudt, Jüdische Merkwürdigkeiten: vorstellend, was sich Denkwürdiges in den neuen Zeiten bey einigen Jahrhunderten mit den in alle 4 Theile der Welt, sonderlich durch Teutschland zerstreuten Juden zugetragen; sammt einer vollständigen Franckfurter Juden-Chronik; mit Kupfern und Figuren, Leipzig 1718, 303. The verdict SO WAHR DIE MAUS DIE KATZ NIT FRISST , WIRD DER IUD KEIN WAHRER CHRIST ("As true as the mouse does not devour the cat, the Jew will never become a true Christian") over converted Jews is medieval and was once inscribed in a wall of Freising cathedral.

The medallion denounces credulity, but also shows antisemitic tendencies. Unfortunately the dictum breathes the spirit of Martin Luther who in his tract "Von den Juden und iren Lügen" serves traditional anti-Jewish sentiments: "Trau keinem Wolf auf wilder Heiden//Auch keinem Juden auf seine Eiden//Glaub keinem Papst auf sein Gewissen//Wirst sonst von allen Drein beschissen" (Do not trust a wolf on wild heathland and a Jew's oaths. Do not believe in a pope's conscience, otherwise you will be cheated by all three). Luther's famous saying was taken up by Elvira Bauer, a nursery school teacher, who had fallen victim to the National-socialistic racist mania; in 1936 she published a children's book with the title "Trau keinem Fuchs auf grüner Heid und keinem Jud bei seinem Eid"! Ein Bilderbuch für Groß und Klein"; its objective was to implant the Nazi's hatred of Jews in the German people.

- 2537 Bronze medal 1796, unsigned. A token of the Cabbage Society issued on the occasion of the Purimfestival in 1796. Cauliflower, around CABBAGE – SOCIETY//PURIM 1796 around a flower with six petals. Engraved edge: AN ASYLUM FOR THE OPPRESS'D OF ALL NATIONS. 32,18 mm; 14,74 g. Friedenberg S. 82 ff. Very rare. Very fine

The token-shaped medal is published by Dalton/Hamer, The Provincial Token-Coinage of the 18th Century, London 1910 (repr. by Stow, Mass. 1967) as number 227 in the Middlesex section. Friedenberg mentions other examples which were produced in 1780 and 1814. The meaning of the medal is still puzzling, as neither a Cabbage Society nor the reason for the minting of them is known. In connection to another token with the image of George Washington and the US flag beneath the legend LIBERTY AND SECURITY (Dalton/Hamer ibid. 243) which has the same words around the rim, Friedenberg interprets the medals as an expression of secret support for American independence. The suggestion of the Purim festival can also be understood in this context, a festival which also celebrates the freedom of a (Jewish) people.

- 2538 Aluminium medal 1923, signed by F. W. Hörnlein, directed against the usurers during the German inflation period after 1st World War. 24.552 pieces of this aluminium medal were minted. These medals fall back on the motif of the Corn-Jew, which was used for invectives against the Jews as early as in the 17th c.

- 2539 Bronze jeton, undated (minted in the nineteen-twenties), unsigned. Originally the "Home of the Sons and Daughters of Israel" was a charity organisation of Manhattan, which since its founding in 1909 collected money in order to built an aged people’s home. In 1914 the charity organisation succeeded in purchasing a building where it could establish such a home for aged Jewish people. In the nineteen-twenties the organisation appealed several times for donations by producing medals which were given to the donors. This medal may be one them. Leonard Jr.: Home of the Sons and Daughters of Israel: Its History and Contribution Tokens, in: The Shekel 38, Nr. 6, 2005, 14-23.

EIN NAZI FÄHRT NACH PALÄSTINA (a Nazi travels to Palestine) around Star of David//In three lines UND ERZÄHLT / DAVON IM / ANGRIF (and speaks of it in the 'Angriff' [Attack]); swastika above. 35,42 mm; 15,88 g. Kirschner 48. Edge fault, the surfaces slightly rubbed, extremely fine

In April 1933 the journalist and SS-member Leopold von Mildenstein and Kurt Tuchler, a Zionist living in Berlin, together with their wives went on a journey to Palestine. Tuchler wanted to show the Nazis that the so-called solution of the Jewish question should be the German Jews’ emigration to Palestine. In Palestine von Mildenstein met Ben Gurion and was full of admiration for the Jewish activities there. Back in Germany von Mildenstein wrote some articles in the Nazi journal 'Angriff' in order to convince the Germans of his emigration idea, but he failed. Tragically, von Mildenstein recruited Adolf Eichmann for the government department which had to deal with the 'solution of the Jewish question'. Von Mildenstein himself had to leave this department after a dispute with Reinhard Heydrich, one of the organisers of the Shoah. This rare medal commemorates von Mildenberg’s action little known today.

- 2541 Bronze medal, 1966, signed by P. Vincze, commemorating Edmond and James de Rothschild. VINCZE//View of the Knesset, beneath it three scenes which symbolise agriculture, education and technical production. Signature of P. VINCZE in Latin and Hebrew characters. Edge lettering in Latin and Hebrew STATE OF ISRAEL AVG 1966, Menorah. 59,00 mm; 76,92 g. Matte finish, extremely fine

Baron Edmond de Rothschild, 1845-1934, was a member of the French Rothschild family. He was a very active philanthropist and patron who particularly supported the Jews in Palestine by purchasing vast areas of land and bestowing them upon Jewish settlers. Also his son James and his daughter-in-law promoted the Zionist movement. James de Rothschild granted large sums for the construction of the Knesset, i.e. the house of Parliament in Jerusalem.

PALESTINE RARE ANCIENT OBJECTS

Ancient Jewish History and Life by Gems, Seal Impressions, Weights and Other Rare Objects (From the Period of the Assyrian occupation to Late Antiquity)

Long before the first coins, which testify the administrative district of YHWD (Judaea), were minted, Jewish life in Palestine becomes tangible by gem stones and seal impressions engraved with paleo-Hebrew script. It is hardly surprising that the Samel siblings, who were so much aware of Jewish history, integrated some of these objects into their collection. Most of them date back to the 8th c. BCE, when the kings of the Neo-Assyrian Empire dominated almost the entire Near East. Since 722/720 BCE Judaea, as well as Egypt, belonged to their dominion.

The gems which form part of this collection could be used for both economic transactions and legal activities. Closed vessels, which had been filled with agricultural products like corn, oil and wine, as well as strapped bundles of precious commodities were secured by wet lumps of clay into which a seal was pressed. Such bullae were also attached to documents, in order to confirm their authenticity. In private and public archives there are sometimes thousands of such bullae found during excavations. Very often these seals had the form of a scaraboid, i.e. of a gem with a flat oval base and a somewhat rounded back, from which it took its modern name of a 'beetle-like gem', i.e. scaraboid. The flat base of the scaraboids was engraved with images or text, sometimes with both, almost always laterally reversed. As a general rule the gems with images are older. The Samel collection presents some very interesting depictions. Judaea's proximity to Egypt is reflected by a (Horus) falcon with an Ankh symbol before it. A lion with wide open jaws may be understood as a Jewish motif alluding to Judah, but normally the text consisted of personal names, primarily the name of the person, who owned that particular seal. Very often the name of that person's father was added, occasionally also a title. Such seal stones could be attached to a finger ring – two examples can be found in the Samel collection – or were drilled through lengthwise, in order to avoid losing them. We can be certain that such gems were relatively expensive objects, so their holders apparently belonged to the higher social strata of Jewish society, e.g. rich landowners, long-distance merchants, senior officials and members of the royal family. In the Samel collection a nice chrysocolla gem once belonged to a certain Hillelyahu who is referred to as a king's son. A clay bulla which may be linked with Samaria shows a high Oriental dignitary riding in a biga.

It may be a little surprising that three of the seal stones were owned by women. Helga Weippert 677 underlined that seals engraved with female names are very rare, especially because the fields of activities in which seal stones were used were male domains. In two cases the female anthroponymies are followed neither by the name of the woman's father nor by that of her husband. Only in the case of Naama the name of her father Saal is mentioned in her seal stone's inscription.

Some Jewish stone weights which enrich this collection deserve further attention. Some of them fascinate by their antiquity, such as the hemispherical weights of the Assyrian period. An astonishing 100-shekel weight renders very interesting information by the Greek inscription engraved into it.

Some pieces dating from Late Antiquity – pendants decorated with the menorah and a pair of golden earrings – lead us into Jewish life in the period of Late Antiquity. A very interesting piece is a silver amulet against fever and chills for a certain Shimon. In antiquity malaria was rife in many areas of the Mediterranean. High fever and chills mentioned in the amulet are typical symptoms of malaria. Ancient people attributed such illness to the work of the devil or an evil eye.

 For this motif cf. Weippert 674. The lion is linked with Jacob's son Judah who is called 'a young lion' (gur aryeh) by his father (Genesis 49, 9: "Judah is a lion's whelp"). Today the lion is depicted in Jerusalem's municipal coat of arms. In antiquity many Jews living in the diaspora were named Λεόντιος Leontios which means 'lion-like' or 'descending from a lion' in order to avoid the name Judah sounding alien to the Greek speaking people, cf. L. Robert, Inscriptions grecques de Sidè en Pamphylie, RPh 32, 1958, 15-53, esp. 42 n. 7 (= ders., Opera Minora Selecta 5, 155-193, esp. 182 n. 7); J. Nollé, Side im Altertum. - 2590 Reign of Agrippa II ? Cheese loaf-like weight made of white limestone with brown patina, greatest diameter 10 cm, height ca. 5.5 cm, engraved with: Λ Ε βασιλέ|ως | Αγρίππου | Αθάμα (Year 5 of [the reign] of King Agrippa. [Weight] of Athamas).

Overbeck - Meshorer no. A59.

Prima facie, it is unclear, whether the king mentioned in this inscription is Agrippa I or Agrippa II. The lack of Agrippa I's title 'megas' may be used as an argument for the identification of the king, after whose reign the weight is dated, with Agrippa II. The name of the owner of this weight, Athamas, is of great interest: Athamas is a very rare Greek mythological name, but it is highly improbable to find a bearer of this name, which falls back to a Boiotian and Thessalian hero, in Judaea. Also the use of the wrong genitive form Athama instead of Athamantos (cf. W. Pape - G. Benseler, Wörterbuch der griechischen Eigennamen I, A-K, Braunschweig 1911, 23) shows that we are not dealing with a Greek living in Judaea but with a Jew. Agrippa II's realm mainly comprised of territories with a mixed population, where Greek was used as a common language (cf. the language used for the inscription) and where many Jews tried to become integrated in the existing society while maintaining their religious and cultural identity as far as possible. This endeavour is reflected by the names given to Jewish children in this area or generally in the diaspora. Quite often Jewish parents gave their children Greek names which could be understood as translations of Hebrew names (e.g. Salome = Eirene, Theodoros = Nathanael, Gelasios = Itzhak), as allusions to them (Leontios = Juda) or homonyms of Hebrew names (Jason = Joshua). Athamas, the name inscribed into the weight, belongs to the last category: It is the hellenised form of the Jewish name Adam; cf. e.g. J. Méléze-Modrzejewski, Les tourments de Paul de Tarse, in: Symposium 1988. Vorträge zur griechischen und hellenistischen Rechtsgeschichte (Siena - Pisa, 6.-8. Juni 1988), Köln/Wien 1990, 320 f. In coming to a conclusion, this weight bears witness to both the situation in Agrippa II's kingdom and the Jews' difficult life in the diaspora.

Hubert Ruß Die mittelalterlichen Münzen des Hochstiftes Würzburg

Das Mittelalter kannte über 500 Jahre nur ein Münznominal, einen anfangs etwa ein Gramm schweren Pfennig (Denar). Dennoch beeindruckt die Vielfalt der Bild Darstellungen auf den Münzen, die die Würzburger Münzprägung zwischen 900 und 1495 hervorbrachte. Die frühesten Prägungen stammen von den weltlichen Herrschern, angefangen bei dem Karolinger Ludwig dem Kind über die ottonischen Kaiser bis hin zu den Saliern Heinrich IV. und Heinrich V.

Bereits um das Jahr 1000 ließ Bischof Heinrich I. (995-1018) noch anonyme Pfennige ausgeben, unter Bruno (1034-1045) erscheint erstmals der Name des Bischofs auf den Münzen. Die kaiserlichen Prägungen traten zurück.

Unter den Münzherren der folgenden Jahrhunderte finden sich berühmte Bischöfe wie Embricho, Konrad I. von Querfurt, Otto und Hermann von Lobdeburg, Berthold von Sternberg, Gottfried und Albrecht von Hohenlohe oder Gerhard von Schwarzburg. Sie alle prägten das Münzbild sowie die Metrologie der Würzburger Münzen nachhaltig.

Um den Anforderungen des Geldverkehrs zu genügen, wurden gegen Ende des 14. Jahrhunderts erstmals auch Goldmünzen und größere Silbrenominale wie Groschen, Halbgroschen und Schillinge ausgegeben.

Mit dem vorliegenden Katalog wird ein umfassendes Korpuswerk vorgelegt, das die bisher bekannten Münzen um viele neue Typen und Varianten erweitert. Erstmals wurden auch die entsprechenden Archivalien ausgewertet.

Ausgehend von einer kurzen Beschreibung der Amtszeit der Bischöfe, die v.a. auf die Ereignisse ausgerichtet ist, die für die Münzprägung von Bedeutung sind, werden die jeweiligen Pfennigtypen in Motivgruppen zusammengefasst vorgestellt. Datierungsansätze für die durchwegs undatierten Würzburger Pfennige werden gegeben, soweit sie erschließbar sind. Ein Stichwortregister sowie detaillierte Fundaufstellungen erschließen das Werk für den Benutzer.

Ein Instrument, um die Zeit zu messen – und eigentlich doch so viel mehr. Uhren erzählen uns Geschichten, sind im wahrsten Sinne des Wortes Zeitzeugen. Über Jahrzehnte begleiten sie unseren Alltag, sind eng mit unserer persönlichen Historie verwoben. Vielleicht war deshalb der Weg von der Münze zur Uhr kein weiter – schließlich fasziniert uns auch an der Numismatik die Geschichte und die Geschichten, die eine Münze zu erzählen vermag.

Was als kleine Fantasie begann, entwickelte sich dann schnell zu etwas Großem: Die Idee für KÜNKER WATCHES ist geboren.

Mit einer spannenden Auswahl hochwertiger Uhren wird schon im Juni 2020 die erste Auktion von KÜNKER WATCHES stattfinden. Sie erwarten zeitlose Klassiker exklusiver Manufakturen. Wenn auch Sie unsere Leidenschaft für erstklassige Armbanduhren teilen, dann freuen wir uns sehr auf Ihre Einlieferung.

Musterauftrag für schriftliche Gebote

Name, Adresse, Telefon

Ihre vollständige Anschrift ist wichtig, damit wir Ihren Auktionsauftrag annehmen und bearbeiten können. Ihre Telefonnummer brauchen wir, um Sie bei Rückfragen zu Ihren Geboten schnell erreichen zu können.

Überschreitung Ihrer Limits pro Einzellos

In der Praxis zeigt sich, dass oft mehrere Bieter mit ihren Geboten dicht beieinander liegen. Deshalb empfiehlt es sich, an dieser Stelle einer geringfügigen Überschreitung Ihrer Gebote zuzustimmen. Dadurch erhöhen sich Ihre Chancen, im Wettbewerb mit anderen den Zuschlag zu erhalten.

Losnummern und Gebote

Listen Sie alle Lose, für die Sie sich interessieren, mit ihrer Katalognummer auf und legen Sie für sich selbst fest, wie viel Sie bereit sind, für jedes einzelne Los zu bieten.

Ihre Kundennummer

Die Angabe Ihrer Kundennummer unterstützt uns bei der Bearbeitung Ihres Auktionsauftrages. Viele Vorarbeiten für die Auktion werden dadurch einfacher und es werden Fehler vermieden.

Begrenzung Ihres Gesamtlimits

Hier können Sie die Gesamtsumme Ihrer Gebote begrenzen und festlegen, was Sie insgesamt maximal bereit sind, auszugeben. Aufgeld und Mehrwertsteuer kommen später noch hinzu.

„Oder“-Gebote

Wenn Sie sich für mehrere Münzen interessieren, aber nur ein Stück davon erwerben wollen, können Sie Ihre Gebote einfach mit einem „Oder“ verbinden. Wichtig: bei den „Oder“-Geboten können Sie nicht auf frühere Katalognummern zurückgreifen (z. B. 2890 oder 1558), da die Nr. 1558 dann bereits versteigert ist.

Unterschreiben Sie Ihren Auktionsauftrag ...

... nachdem Sie Ihre Angaben noch einmal überprüft haben. Ihre Unterschrift ist wichtig, denn damit bestätigen Sie uns, dass Sie tatsächlich teilnehmen wollen.

Wie entsteht der Preis einer Auktion?

Der im Auktionskatalog angegebene Preis ist ein Schätzpreis, der durch unsere Experten festgelegt wurde. Das Mindestgebot liegt bei 80 % dieses Wertes. Die Zuschlagpreise sind oft deutlich höher als die Schätzpreise. Als Auktionshaus müssen wir bereits vor der Auktion alle schriftlichen Gebote koordinieren. Folgende Beispiele sind im Bietverfahren möglich:

Beispiel 1 (Schätzpreis: € 1.000,-)

Es liegt kein schriftlicher Auftrag vor: Der Auktionator ruft das Los in der Auktion mit € 800,- aus. Wenn im Saal nur ein Bieter darauf ein Gebot abgibt, erhält der Saalbieter den Zuschlag für € 800,-.

Beispiel 2 (Schätzpreis: € 1.000,-)

Es liegen dem Auktionator drei schriftliche Gebote vor:

Bieter 1: Limit € 2.900,-
Bieter 2: Limit € 1.800,-
Bieter 3: Limit € 800,-

Nach der Versteigerungsordnung muss der Auktionator im Interesse von Bieter 1 und 2 angemessen überbieten (um ca. 5 bis 10%). Der Ausrufpreis in der Auktion beträgt daher im Interesse von Bieter 1 € 1.900,- (obwohl die Schätzung € 1.000,- beträgt). Falls keine höheren Gebote aus dem Saal erfolgen, erhält Bieter 1 den Zuschlag für € 1.900,-. Das Höchstangebot von € 2.900,- musste nicht ausgeschöpft werden.

Beispiel 3 (Schätzpreis: € 1.000,-)

Es liegt dem Auktionator nur ein schriftliches Gebot von € 850,- vor: Das Los wird in der Auktion mit € 800,- ausgerufen. Falls kein Bieter im Saal ein Gegenangebot abgibt, erhält der schriftliche Bieter den Zuschlag bei € 800,-.

Beispiel 4 (Schätzpreis: € 1.000,-)

Es liegt dem Auktionator nur ein schriftliches Gebot von € 1.200,- vor: Der Auktionator ruft das Los mit € 800,- aus. Gibt es im Saal keinen Gegenbieter, erhält der schriftliche Bieter den Zuschlag bei € 800,-. Falls es im Saal Gegenbieter gibt, bietet der Auktionator für seinen schriftlichen Bieter bis maximal € 1.200,- und erteilt einem Gegenbieter im Saal erst bei mehr als € 1.200,- den Zuschlag.

Beispiel 5 (Schätzpreis: € 1.000,-)

Es liegen drei Gebote von je € 975,- vor: Um Missverständnisse zu vermeiden, überzieht der Auktionator das zuerst eingegangene Gebot geringfügig und erteilt den Zuschlag bei € 1.000,-.

Как образовывается цена на аукционе?

- Все лоты в нашем каталоге были предварительно оценены нашими экспертами. Минимальная ставка составляет 80 % от оценочной стоимости лота. Конечные цены зачастую намного превышают оценочные.
- Ваши письменные (заочные) ставки должны быть обязательно обработаны нашими сотрудниками до начала аукциона. Рассмотрим несколько возможных примеров:

Пример 1 (Оценочная стоимость: € 1.000,-)

Заочных ставок нет. Аукционатор начинает торги с € 800,-. Если в зале только один человек, желающий приобрести этот лот, то соответственно он получит его за € 800,-.

Пример 2 (Оценочная стоимость: € 1.000,-)

У аукционатора имеются 3 заочные ставки:

Заочный участник 1 : Лимит € 2.900,-
Заочный участник 2 : Лимит € 1.800,-
Заочный участник 3 : Лимит € 800,-

По правилам аукциона аукционатор в интересах заочного участника 1 и 2 должен повышать ставку равномерно (приблизительно на 5–10 %). Поэтому в нашем случае в интересах заочного участника 1 аукционатор начнет торги с € 1.900,- (хотя оценочная стоимость составляет € 1.000,-). Если среди очных участников никто не даст более высокую ставку, то заочный участник 1 получит этот лот за € 1.900,-. Его лимит в € 2.900,- ни в коем случае не будет исчерпан.

Пример 3 (Оценочная стоимость: € 1.000,-)

У аукционатора имеется только 1 заочная ставка в размере € 850,-. Аукционатор начнет торги с € 800,-. Если среди очных участников никто не даст более высокую ставку, то заочный участник получит этот лот за € 800,-.

Пример 4 (Оценочная стоимость: € 1.000,-)

У аукционатора имеется только 1 заочная ставка в размере € 1.200,-. Аукционатор начнет торги с € 800,-. Если среди очных участников никто не даст более высокую ставку, то заочный участник получит этот лот за € 800,-. Если же в зале очный участник согласен на более высокую ставку (больше € 800,-), то в этом случае аукционатор в интересах заочного участника имеет право тоговаться до € 1.200,-. Следовательно только при ставке, превышающей € 1.200,-, данный лот получит очный участник в зале.

Пример 5 (Оценочная стоимость: € 1.000,-)

У аукционатора имеются 3 заочные ставки, каждая в размере € 975,-. Среди очных участников интереса к лоту не имеется. В этом случае чтобы избежать недоразумений, аукционатор имеет право ненамного повысить лимит и сделать ставку равной € 1.000,-. Данный лот за € 1.000,- получит тот заочный участник, чей письменный формуляр мы получили раньше всего.

Versteigerungsbedingungen

§ 1 Geltungsbereich

Wir versteigern als Kommissionär im eigenen Namen und für Rechnung der Einlieferer, die unbenannt bleiben. Durch die Teilnahme an der Versteigerung werden die Versteigerungsbedingungen anerkannt.

§ 2 Vertragsschluss

Der Zuschlag erfolgt nach dreimaligem Ausruf des höchsten Gebotes und verpflichtet zur unverzüglichen Abnahme der Ware. Bei Vorlage besonderer Gründe können wir den Zuschlag verweigern oder uns vorbehalten. Geben mehrere Bieter gleich hohe Gebote ab, können wir nach freiem Ermessen einem Bieter den Zuschlag erteilen, durch Los über den Zuschlag entscheiden oder die Nummer noch einmal ausrufen. Der Versteigerer ist berechtigt, aus wichtigem Grund Nummern zu vereinigen oder zu trennen, in einer anderen als der im Katalog vorgesehenen Reihenfolge aufzurufen oder zurückzuziehen. Erfolgt ein Zuschlag unter Vorbehalt, erlischt das Gebot mit Ablauf von 4 Wochen ab dem Tag des Zuschlags, es sei denn, wir haben dem Bieter innerhalb dieser Frist die vorbehaltlose Annahme des Gebotes mitgeteilt.

Das Eigentum an der Ware geht erst mit vollständiger Bezahlung auf den Käufer über. Sofern nichts anderes vereinbart wird, ist der Kaufpreis von anwesenden Käufern sofort, bei schriftlichen bzw. telefonischen Bietern spätestens 20 Tage nach Erhalt der Rechnung zu zahlen. Bei Zahlungsverzug werden Zinsen i. H. v. 1% pro Monat berechnet.

Verweigert der Käufer ernsthaft und endgültig die Abnahme der Ware, können wir vom Kaufvertrag zurücktreten und Schadensersatz verlangen mit der Maßgabe, dass wir den Gegenstand nochmals versteigern und unseren Schaden in derselben Weise wie bei Zahlungsverzug des Käufers geltend machen können, ohne dass dem Käufer ein Mehrerlös aus der erneuten Versteigerung zusteht. Der Versand erfolgt schnellstmöglich nach der Auktion beziehungsweise in Absprache mit dem Käufer und auf seine Kosten und Gefahr. Soll ein Versand in das Ausland erfolgen, ist unter Umständen die Einholung einer Ausfuhrgenehmigung nach dem Kulturgutschutzgesetz erforderlich. Dadurch bedingte Verzögerungen oder eine etwaige Versagung der Ausfuhrgenehmigung gehen nicht zu unseren Lasten und lassen die Verpflichtung des Käufers zur Abnahme der Ware und fristgerechten Zahlung des Kaufpreises unberührt.

§ 3 Gebote, Saalauktion

Wir berücksichtigen bestmöglich schriftliche oder fernmündliche Gebote bzw. Gebote via Internet und behandeln diese grundsätzlich gleich wie Angebote aus dem Versteigerungssaal. Aufträge von uns unbekanntem Sammlern können wir nur ausführen, wenn ein Depot hinterlegt wird oder Referenzen benannt werden. Schriftliche Gebote können nur bis 24 Stunden vor Auktionsbeginn berücksichtigt werden, telefonische Bieter müssen sich mindestens zwei Werktage vor der Auktion voranmelden.

Im Bedarfsfall sind wir berechtigt, die Limits um 3-5% zu überschreiten. Gebote, die unter 80% des Schätzpreises liegen, werden nicht berücksichtigt.

§ 4 Gebote, eLive Premium (Online-Auktion)

Jedes Gebot des Kunden im Rahmen der eLive Premium Auction stellt ein verbindliches Angebot zum Abschluss eines Kaufvertrages dar. Dieses ist solange wirksam, bis ein höheres Gebot (Übergebot) abgegeben oder die eLive Premium Auction ohne Erteilung eines Zuschlages geschlossen wird.

Die Vorgebote für die Online-Auktion eLive Premium Auction können über die Website www.elive-auction.de abgegeben werden, sobald die Auktion online verfügbar ist. Während der Auktion erfolgt das „live bidding“ bis zum finalen virtuellen Zuschlag.

Für die Abgabe von Geboten wird ein myKünker-Zugang benötigt, der auf www.kuenker.de erstellt werden kann. Eine Neuregistrierung oder Passwortänderung ist nach dem Start der Auktion technisch nicht mehr möglich. Da wir für Neuregistrierungen und Aufträge von uns unbekanntem Sammlern ein Depot oder eine Referenzen benötigen, muss die Neuregistrierung mindestens 48 Stunden vor Auktionsbeginn auf www.kuenker.de abgeschlossen sein.

Darüber hinaus berücksichtigen wir bestmöglich schriftliche oder fernmündliche Gebote. Schriftliche Gebote können nur bis 24 Stunden vor Auktionsbeginn berücksichtigt werden. Geht während der Bearbeitung eines schriftlichen Gebots ein gleich lautendes Vorgebot über www.elive-auction.de bei uns ein, wird dieses bevorzugt. Bei mehreren gleichhohen schriftlichen Geboten erhält das zuerst eingegangene den Zuschlag.

Bei schriftlichen Geboten sind wir im Bedarfsfall berechtigt, die Limits um 3-5% zu überschreiten. Gebote, die unter 100% des Schätzpreises liegen, werden in der eLive Premium Auction nicht berücksichtigt.

§ 5 Übermittlung von Geboten

Unlimitierte Aufträge haben keinen Anspruch auf unbedingte Ausführung. Schriftliche, fernmündliche und Internet-Gebote werden von uns ohne Auftragsprovision ausgeführt; sie müssen den Gegenstand mit Katalognummer und dem gebotenen Preis, der sich als Zuschlagssumme ohne Aufgeld und Umsatzsteuer versteht, benennen und sind bindend. Unklarheiten oder Ungenauigkeiten gehen zu Lasten des Bieters. Wir übernehmen für diese Gebote jedoch keinerlei Haftung, insbesondere nicht für das Zustandekommen und die Aufrechterhaltung von Übermittlungsfehlern, ebenso wenig für Ausfall- und Verzögerungszeiten, verursacht durch Wartungen und Wiederherstellungen des jeweiligen Servers, durch Störungen und Probleme im Internetverkehr, durch höhere Gewalt sowie weitere Störungen, die durch Umstände begründet sind, die außerhalb unserer Verantwortung liegen. Dies gilt nicht für den Fall, dass uns hieran der Vorwurf grober Fahrlässigkeit oder Vorsatz trifft.

§ 8 Zahlung und Aufgeld

Der Zuschlagpreis bildet die Berechnungsgrundlage für das vom Käufer zu zahlende Aufgeld. Für Käufer aus EU-Ländern gilt: Für Endverbraucher wird einheitlich ein Aufgeld von 23% einschließlich der gesetzlichen Umsatzsteuer erhoben. Für Unternehmer i. S. d. UStG wird bei differenzbesteuerter Ware ein Aufgeld von 23% einschließlich der gesetzlichen Umsatzsteuer erhoben. Bei mehrwertsteuerfreier sowie regelbesteuerter Ware beträgt das Aufgeld 20% (bei regelbesteuerter Ware zzgl. gesetzlicher Umsatzsteuer auf Gesamtbetrag von Zuschlag und Aufgeld).

Institutionelle Käufer (eingetragene Münzhändler) mit gültiger Umsatzsteuer-Identifikationsnummer (UST-ID), die in einem EU-Mitgliedsstaat eingetragen ist, können sich die Umsatzsteuer erstatten lassen, sofern sie uns die dafür gesetzlich erforderlichen Dokumente vorlegen. Diese bestehen aus der UST-ID und der Eingangsbestätigung auf dem Territorium des EU-Mitgliedsstaates, in dem die UST-ID ausgestellt wurde (Gelangensbestätigung). Für den Fall, dass wir die Ware ausführen und eine gültige UST-ID vor dem Kauf vorgelegt wurde, wird keine Umsatzsteuer berechnet.

Für Käufer mit Wohnsitz in Drittländern (außerhalb der EU) gilt: Das Aufgeld beträgt einheitlich 20% (wird die Ware vom Käufer selbst oder durch Dritte in Drittländer ausgeführt, wird die gesetzliche Umsatzsteuer berechnet, jedoch bei Vorlage der gesetzlich geforderten Ausfuhrnachweise erstattet. Führen wir diese Ware selbst in Drittländer aus, wird die gesetzliche Umsatzsteuer nicht berechnet).

Der Versand nach Russland und in die GUS-Staaten ist nicht möglich. Kunden aus diesen Ländern geben mit Abgabe eines Gebotes die Erklärung ab, das ersteigerte Auktionsgut selbst oder durch Boten in Osnabrück abzuholen und die gesetzliche Umsatzsteuer zu bezahlen. Liegt uns der gesetzlich geforderte Ausfuhrnachweis vor, wird die bezahlte Umsatzsteuer rückerstattet.

Im Ausland anfallende Steuern (z. B. Umsatzsteuern, Einfuhrumsatzsteuern o. ä.) und Zölle trägt in jedem Fall der Käufer. Die Versandkosten werden dem Käufer nach Aufwand berechnet.

§ 9 Mängelhaftung

Die Katalogbeschreibungen sind keine vertraglich vereinbarten Beschaffenheiten i. S. d. § 434 BGB, sondern dienen lediglich zur Information und zur Abgrenzung der Ware. Die Angabe der Erhaltung wird streng nach den im deutschen Münzhandel üblichen Erhaltungseinstufungen vorgenommen und erfolgt nach persönlicher Beurteilung. Die Echtheit der Stücke wird gewährleistet, sofern nichts Gegenteiliges im Katalog oder bei der Versteigerung angegeben wird; hier haften wir gegenüber dem Käufer für einen insoweit entstandenen Schaden bis zur Höhe des Kaufpreises. Im Übrigen übernehmen wir keine Verantwortung für etwaige Rechts- oder Sachmängel bezüglich der im Katalog aufgeführten Ware.

Wir geben durch Vorbesichtigung Gelegenheit, sich vom Erhaltungszustand der Ware zu überzeugen. Fehler, die sich bereits aus den Abbildungen ergeben, berechtigen nicht zur Beanstandung. Bei der Auktion anwesende Käufer kaufen grundsätzlich »wie besehen«. Bei Losen mit mehreren Stücken sind die Stückzahlen nur Cirkaangaben. Gewährleistungsansprüche wegen Sach- und Rechtsmängeln oder irrtümlichen Zuschreibungen sind ausgeschlossen. Innerhalb der gesetzlichen Gewährleistungsfrist vorgelegene und begründete Mängelrügen des Käufers leiten wir jedoch unverzüglich an den Einlieferer der bemängelten Sache weiter. Nach unserer Wahl treten wir unsere gegen den Einlieferer aus der Verletzung des Kommissionsvertrages zustehenden Ansprüche an den Käufer ab bzw. stellen den Käufer durch Rückabwicklung des Kaufvertrages schadlos, wobei ein über die Erstattung des Kaufpreises hinausgehender Anspruch des Käufers ausgeschlossen ist. Ort der Rückabwicklung ist Osnabrück.

§ 10 Umgang mit Grading-Unternehmen

Wir übernehmen keine Verantwortung dafür, dass die durch uns versteigerte Ware von den sogenannten Grading-Unternehmen angenommen oder die Erhaltungsqualität in einer ähnlichen Form eingeschätzt wird, wie durch uns. Reklamationen, die daraus resultieren, dass ein Grading-Unternehmen zu einer abweichenden Qualitätsbewertung gekommen ist, berechtigen nicht zu einer Rückabwicklung des Kaufes.

Bei Stücken, die uns in den sogenannten „Slabs“, (Münzen sind eingeschweißt in Plastikholder, ausgegeben von den Grading-Unternehmen) eingeliefert werden, entfällt die oben genannte Echtheitsgarantie. Auch für versteckte Mängel, z. B. Randfehler, Henkelspuren, Schleifspuren, etc., die durch den Plastikholder verdeckt werden, übernehmen wir keine Mängelhaftung.

§ 11 Haftungsbeschränkung

Schadensersatzansprüche des Käufers gegen uns sind – gleich aus welchem Rechtsgrund – ausgeschlossen. Dies gilt nicht für Schäden, die auf einem vorsätzlichen oder grob fahrlässigen Verhalten von uns, unseren gesetzlichen Vertretern oder Erfüllungsgehilfen beruhen bzw. ihre Ursache in der Verletzung von vertraglichen Kardinalpflichten haben; im letzteren Fall ist Haftung jedoch auf den vorhersehbaren, vertragstypischen Schaden beschränkt. Die Haftung für Schäden aus der Verletzung des Lebens, des Körpers oder der Gesundheit bleibt unberührt.

Der Käufer kann nicht aufrechnen, es sei denn, seine Gegenansprüche sind rechtskräftig festgestellt, unbestritten oder von uns anerkannt. Zurückbehaltungsrechte des Käufers sind ebenfalls ausgeschlossen, es sei denn, er ist nicht Unternehmer i. S. d. § 14 BGB und sein Gegenanspruch beruht auf demselben Vertragsverhältnis.

§ 12 Anzuwendendes Recht, Gerichtsstand

Es gilt ausschließlich das Recht der Bundesrepublik Deutschland. Das Übereinkommen der Vereinten Nationen über Verträge über den internationalen Warenkauf (CISG) findet keine Anwendung. Gegenüber Unternehmern i. S. d. § 14 BGB und Käufern ohne allgemeinen Gerichtsstand im Inland ist Erfüllungsort und ausschließlicher Gerichtsstand bei allen aus dem Vertragsverhältnis unmittelbar oder mittelbar sich ergebenden Streitigkeiten Osnabrück. Sollte eine der Bestimmungen ganz oder teilweise unwirksam sein oder werden, bleibt die Gültigkeit der übrigen davon unberührt. Die unwirksame ist durch eine wirksame zu ersetzen, die dem wirtschaftlichen Gehalt und Zweck der unwirksamen Bestimmung am nächsten kommt. Gleiches gilt für eine Lücke. Soweit die Versteigerungsbedingungen in mehreren Sprachen vorliegen, ist stets die deutsche Fassung maßgebend.

Auction Terms and Conditions

§ 1 Scope

We auction objects on commission in our own name, but for the account of the submitting party whose identity will not be disclosed. Participation in any auction shall be deemed acceptance of these Auction Terms and Conditions.

§ 2 Establishment of Contract

After the highest bid has been called out three times, this bid is deemed to be accepted, and the bidder is under the obligation to accept the goods without delay. At our reasonable discretion, we are entitled to refuse acceptance of a bid or accept it only on special terms. If several bidders make a bid in the same amount, we are entitled to choose to accept a bid from any one of these at our reasonable discretion. The auctioneer is authorised to combine or separate numbered lots if there are important reasons, or to call them up in another order than listed in the catalogue, or to withdraw them. If a bid is conditionally accepted, its acceptance expires at the end of 4 weeks from the original acceptance date, unless we have notified the bidder of unconditional acceptance of the bid within this period.

Title to any goods shall only pass to the purchaser upon payment in full. Unless otherwise agreed, the purchase price shall be paid immediately by any purchaser present, at the latest within 20 days of receipt of an invoice in the case of bids submitted in writing or by telephone. Interest will be charged on late payments at a rate of 1% per month.

Should the buyer seriously and finally refuse to accept the goods, we shall be entitled to withdraw from the purchase contract and demand compensation; we shall then be entitled to re-auction the goods and cover our loss in the same manner as in the event of late payment by the buyer, without the latter being entitled to any additional proceeds from the re-auction. Shipment will be effected as soon as reasonably possible after the auction, or as agreed with the buyer, and at his cost and risk. For shipments abroad, an export licence which is in accordance to the German Cultural Property Law may be necessary. We cannot be held liable for delays in delivery caused by obtaining the export licence or in case that export licence will not be approved. It also has no effect on the buyer's acceptance of the goods and payment in time.

§ 3 Bids, Floor Auction

Wherever possible, we shall take into consideration written or telephone or internet bids to the best of our ability and shall treat them in the same manner as auction room bids. We can only accept orders from collectors not known to us if a deposit is lodged, or if references are quoted. Written bids will only be taken into consideration if received 24 hours before commencement of the auction at the latest; telephone bidders must lodge their application to participate two working days before the auction at the latest.

We shall be entitled to exceed any limits by 3 to 5%. Bids below 80% of the estimated price will not be taken into consideration.

§ 4 Bids, eLive Premium Auction (Online Auction)

Every submission by a customer within the scope of an eLive Premium Auction constitutes a binding offer to enter into a purchase contract. This offer shall remain in force until a higher bid is received, or until the eLive Auction is closed without acceptance of any bid.

Offers may be made before an online auction through the website www.elive-auction.de, as soon as access to the online auction has been facilitated. During the auction, "live bidding" will continue until final virtual acceptance.

In order to be able to bid, the bidder will require access to myKünker, which can be established through www.kuenker.de. For technical reasons, new registrations or password changes are not possible after the start of the auction. Since we require a security deposit or references from collectors not known to us, new registrations must be completed at least 48 hours before the start of the auction through www.kuenker.de.

In addition, we shall allow for written bids (via letter, e-mail, fax or telephone) to the best of our ability. Written bids cannot be accepted later than 24 hours before the start of an auction. During processing of written bids, any identical bid received via www.elive-auction.de will be given priority. In the event of receipt of several equal written bids, the first one received will be accepted.

We shall be entitled to exceed any limits by 3 to 5% in cases of bids submitted in writing. Bids below 100% of the estimated price will not be taken into consideration in the eLive Premium Auction.

§ 5 Transmission of Bids

Instructions without a quoted limit are not dealt with unconditionally. Written, telephonic and internet bids shall be executed by us without any additional commission payment. Such bids must state the object with catalogue number and bid limit, net of all premiums and taxes and shall be binding. Unclear or inaccurate instructions are the bidder's responsibility. We do not accept any liability for such bids, in particular no liability for occurrence and persistence of transmission errors, nor for any failure or delays caused by maintenance and restoration of any servers, or breakdowns, or problems occurring during internet communication, due to force majeure and any other disruptions occurring for reasons beyond our control. This does not apply in cases where we are accused of gross negligence or malicious action.

up to € 50,000.00	€ 1,000.00
from € 50,000.00	€ 2,500.00

§ 8 Payment and Premiums

The accepted hammer price shall be the reference amount for the premium to be paid by the buyer. The following terms apply to EU buyers: A premium of 23% (statutory Value Added Tax included) is levied on private clients. If bidders are companies within the meaning of the VAT legislation, for differentially chargeable items a premium of 23% is levied (statutory VAT included). Tax-free goods and goods subject to regular taxation are underlying a premium of 20% (for regularly taxable items plus statutory VAT on the total of bid price and premium).

Institutional buyers (registered coin dealers) with a valid VAT number registered in an EU member state can apply for VAT reimbursement, if they provide us with the requisite statutory registration documents. These documents comprise the VAT registration number and the acknowledgement of receipt from the territory of the EU member state in which the VAT registration was issued. Should we ourselves effect the export of any items, and provided a valid VAT registration document was submitted to us before purchase, VAT will not be charged.

For buyers, who are residents of non-EU countries, the following rules apply: The premium shall be 20% (where the goods are exported to a non-EU country by the buyer himself or by a third party, the statutory VAT will be charged but reimbursed on presentation of the statutory evidence of export. If we ourselves effect the export to non-EU countries, no VAT will be charged).

We are not able to ship items to Russia and the CIS-States. When submitting a bid, customers from these territories shall issue a declaration that the items acquired at the auction will be collected in person or by courier in Osnabrück, where the statutory VAT will become payable. If we are in possession of the statutory documentation proving export, Value Added Tax paid will be reimbursed.

Any import (and/or turnover) tax and duty payable abroad is on buyer's account in every case. Any shipping costs shall be charged to the buyer as incurred.

§ 9 Liability for Defects

Catalogue descriptions do not constitute contractually agreed warranties within the meaning of § 434 German Civil Code (BGB) and serve merely for identification and definition of the goods. The description of condition is based strictly on the customary gradings applied by the German Coins Trade and is subject to personal verification. Items are warranted as genuine, unless information to the contrary is provided in the catalogue or during the auction.

Here our liability to the buyer is limited to the purchase price. We accept no further liability statutory or other in respect of any item included in the catalogue.

We afford potential buyers an opportunity to verify the condition of any item before an auction. Defects already apparent from illustrations do not entitle a bidder to complain. Buyers who are present at the auction buy on an "as seen" basis as a matter of principle. In the case of lots that comprise several items, the numbers are approximate only. Warranty claims on grounds of material or legal defects or accidental attribution are excluded. However, justified complaints by the buyer about defects on substantiated grounds lodged within the statutory time limit will be passed on to the party that has submitted the defective article. At our choice, we will either assign any rights on grounds of breach of the commissioning agreement against the party submitting an article to the buyer, or we will indemnify the buyer through rescission of the purchase agreement. Any claims the buyer may have that exceed the purchase price are excluded. The place of rescission is Osnabrück.

§ 10 Handling with Grading-Companies

We do not accept any responsibility for acceptance by the so-called Grading-Companies nor for a similar assessment of the condition of goods. Complaints based on a different quality assessment by a Grading-Company do not entitle the buyer to rescind from the purchase transaction.

For pieces consigned to us in so-called „slabs“ (plastic holders from grading companies) the stated Künker warranty of authenticity is not applicable. Also we are not liable for defects such as rim damages, traces of mounting or filing etc. that are covered by the plastic holder.

§ 11 Limitation of Liability

Claims against us by a buyer for any legal reason whatsoever are excluded. This does not apply in cases of malicious or grossly negligent action by us, by our legal representatives or agents, or caused by a breach of cardinal contractual obligations. However, in the latter case our liability shall be limited to the foreseeable typical loss under the terms of contract. Our liability for loss of life, bodily injury or damage to health remains unaffected.

The buyer has no offsetting rights, unless any claims he may have against us have been legally established, are undisputed, or have been accepted by us. The buyer shall have no lien to the goods, provided he is not a company within the meaning of § 14 BGB and his counter claim is based on the same contractual relationship.

§ 12 Applicable Law, Place of Jurisdiction

The law of the German Federal Republic is exclusively applicable. The UN Convention on the International Sale of Goods (CSIG) does not apply. The place of performance generally and the exclusive place of jurisdiction for companies within the meaning of § 14 BGB for all disputes arising from, or in connection with the contractual relationship is Osnabrück. Should any term or condition be or become and remain partially or wholly inapplicable, this is without prejudice to the remaining terms. Any ineffective term or condition shall be replaced by an effective one with which the intended economic effect and purpose comes closest to that of the ineffective term or condition. The same applies to any omissions. Where these Auction Terms and Conditions are issued in several languages, the German version shall be the binding one.
